Bachman Shows Grand Champion Steer For Second Year

BY LISA RISSER

LEBANON — It was a repeat performance for Kelly Bachman of Cleona when she captured the purple ribbon Wednesday for her granch champion 4-H and Open market steer. She showed last year's grand champion as well.

Bachman's steer, a purebred Angus bred by GH2 Angus in York, was described by Judge Bill Holloway as being very muscled with a tremendous turn over his top. When looking for calves, Bachman looks for "a meaty steer that has a lot of butt end and loin, correct legs, and a straight top," she said. This is only her third year in the 4-H Beef Club.

Reserve champion honors in the 4-H and Open market steer competitions went to Daryl Bomgardner of North Annville. This is the first reserve grand champion steer for the 15-year-old although he did show the grand champion at the local round-up.

Bomgardner, who named his 1,075-pound purebred Angus Ralph, has been in 4-H for seven years and been showing steers during that time. He also is a member of FFA.

Leigh Hitz of Annville, who has been showing steers for 6 years, won the showmanship competition. She also was the winner of the blocking contest in the 12-13 age bracket.

A partial list of the placing follows.

4-H Market Steers
Lightweight
1. Daryl Bomgarnder, 2. Greg Bomgardner, 3 Rodney Bomgardner
Mediumweight
1. Rikanne Kirst, 2. Shelby Heagy, 3. Brian Krieder

GH2 Domino, owned by Kelly Bachman, was judged to be the grand champion market steer in both the 4-H and open shows. This is the second consecutive year that Bachman has shown the grand champion.

Maryland Dairy Princess Crowned

BY BETH HUBER
Maryland Correspondent

FREDERICK — Lana K. Holland was crowned the 1988 Maryland State Dairy Princess at the Sheraton Inn in Frederick July 28, at the 28th annual coronation. 1987 state princess Christine Pieper presented Lana with her crown and a bouquet of red roses. The alternate princess title went to Frederick County princess Regina Williams.

Lana, representing the Lower Shore area, is the 17 year old daughter of Ken and Linda Holland of Pocomoke, Maryland. The new princess is a graduate of Pocomoke High School and plans to attend Catawba College in the fall. While a student at Pocomoke, Lana was an accomplished music student, the vice president of the junior and senior class, as well as being an active member of the student council. Miss Holland has been involved with 4-H for the past nine years where she has participated on the dairy and consumer judging teams along with becoming an accomplished public speaker.

As part of the evenings competition each of the contestants were required to present a skit to the judges and audience. Lana explained that her "magic potion," milk, was good for both young and old alike and as a fairy princess was able to explain that this potion is made entirely by mother nature.

The 1988 Alternate Maryland Princess, Regina Williams, is the 18 year old daughter of John Williams Jr. and Deborah Barnes. A 1988 graduate of Linganore High School, Regina is active in Frederick County with the dairy club where she is the president of the junior club. Regina is very active in dairy judging where she represented Maryland at the World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wisconsin, as well as being on the second place team in the Kentucky competition.

Even though Regina will be busy promoting milk throughout the upcoming year she plans to attend Frederick Community College to major in accounting.

Other area princesses in the pageant include Rebecca Cummings, Garrett-Alleghany Counties, Debbie Starner, Carroll County, recipient of the best skit award; Kathy Johnson, South Central area; Miss Congeniality; and Nicki Meadows representing the Upper Shore Area.

Judges for the contest were Mrs. Carole Carter, the 1965 Maryland State Princess from Baltimore County who is a development officer at the University of Pittsburgh. Obie Snider of Imler, Pennsylvania, who is very involved with the All American Dairy Show and on the Board of Trustees at Penn State University as well as an

Conservation Leaders Convene

STATE COLLEGE — Nearly 200 conservation leaders from throughout the state gathered in State College over the weekend for the third quarterly meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts. The Association represents Pennsylvania's sixty-six county conservation districts, which serve to protect and manage a county's natural resources with primary emphasis on its soil and water resource base.

"These Association gatherings offer conservation districts an opportunity to share district success stories and to consolidate our viewpoints that we can then carry to state and national policy leaders," says Frank Malinzak, Association President. "We're here to learn the latest on resource issues and to explore ways that we can affect changes as one unified group, versus individual district voices."

At the top of Friday's agenda, attendees heard Dr. David A. Long of Penn State University address the issue of a phosphate detergent ban for Pennsylvania. Long was part of a Penn State team which recently concluded a study investi-

ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures closed from 1-1/2 cents higher to 3-1/2 cents lower today, with settlements above session lows as a late short covering rally boosted prices. Strength near the close was attributed to a closing rally in bean futures. Corn prices were pressured throughout the session by lower cash basis levels along with profit-taking and a slack near term export demand. Generic certificate bids deteriorated today with bids ranging from 101 to 102-1/2%.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybeans closed from 1 cents lower on the September option to 6-1/2 cents higher on the August option with closes today sharply higher than session lows. Weakness early in the session was attributed to profit taking on ideas recent gains were overdone. Late session strength was linked to increased talk of yield reductions coupled with heat stress and spider mite infestations. Weather reports are as scattered as the showers with many remaining sidelined awaiting more definitive news. November traded to a low of $8. 34, a high of $8.55 and closed at $8.50-1/2.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures settled from 2 to 5 cents higher this afternoon supported by news of China's purchase of 300,000 MT of soft red wheat. Further export rumors added to the buying enthusiasm along with higher afternoon soybean prices. September remained in an 11 cent trading range with a high of $3.81, a low of $3.75 and a close of $3.80-1/2.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Live cattle closed higher this afternoon from 35 to 80 points while feeders gained from 62 to 125 points. Prices were supported early in the session by sharply lower grains futures and steady cash markets. An increase in retail demand provided additional support along with ideas that recent

NE Chicken Parts

Wednesday, August 3, 1988

Trading activity was mixed and selective. Cutlets were adequate to fully adequate and generally increased in availability. Buyers paid higher prices for committed supplies while often passing offers of extra product. Interest in whole breasts was only fair for retail use and resistance to higher prices was evident throughout the area, supplies were light but generally adequate. Legs and particularly leg quarters were traded at higher levels, although spot reports were noted of caps on leg quarters offered for next week's delivery at 34 to 35 cents. Wings were in heaviest supply and attracted less attention when compared to other items.

OPINION

Feed The Hungry

"Parity Giving" is a bold tax-incentive plan to end America's farm crisis and help feed the starving of our world. This "zero-cost" amendment to the Internal Revenue Service code would allow special valuation of agricultural donations. The legislation is being pressed by farmers and others sensitive to starvation in the world.

John Arens, senior partner with Arens and Alexander, a Fayetteville, Ark. law firm that specializes in farm problems says the connection between starvation and America's farm crisis has not always been as obvious as it is now. "Through the 80s, my law firm has concentrated its efforts in agricultural law, helping farmers fight in the courts to keep their farms. Not until I sat at the kitchen table with Frances and Clarence Hopmann, distressed Delta farmers from Dumas, Ark., did I begin to realize that the farm crisis and the hunger crises were inextricably linked," Arens said.

"Through her tears, Mrs. Hopmann said: "It just doesn't make any sense that 40,000 children die each day because they have no food — we grow rice — and yet we are told by the administration that we have a surplus and that we are not needed anymore; that we must lose our home, our family farm. There is something terribly wrong. We can't have a real surplus when millions suffer and face starvation in the world."

"I began to understand that a lasting solution to America's farm crisis would not be found in the courts or in modern farm subsidies. The answer was ancient: Biblical economics. Only when America empties its storehouses and feeds the hungry, would our farm crisis be at an end. When America does not give on par with its bounty — Parity Giving — its storehouses become artifically full, weakening its farm economy, the primary source of new wealth."

Frances Hopmann, another advocate of Parity Giving says: "With parity giving, America's farmers would no longer be driven into debt, disappointment and bankruptcy for reasons completely beyond their control. This country's well-tested and treasured system of family farms would survive."

The late Carl Wilken, noted agricultural economist and former editor of the Progressive Farmer magazine, observed that in years when farm income makes up at least one-seventh of the nation's Gross National Product, the nation prospers. But in times when farm income falls much below one-seventh, there follows increased unemployment, high national debt and eventually the risk of severe depression. Will there be a great depression of 1990 as some economists are predicting?

Under the proposed legislation, Congress would set a parity value for donated farm products which would amount to the cost of production plus a profit factor. The plan, for example, might establish a parity value for corn at $4.00 per bushel. If a taxpayer were to buy 100 bushels of corn at $3.00 per bushel (current market price) and were to donate it to charity, this donor could value his gift at $400, instead of the current $300 IRS cost allowance. This incentive would encourage both corporate and individual donors to become additional buyers of America's annual harvest. The private sector would be enticed to participate in solving our farm/hunger crisis instead of relying on government bailouts and subsidies.

Any reported food excesses would be absorbed in famine relief. This practical alternative to "tearing down our barns and building new ones" to store our excesses would not only reduce hunger, but would also strengthen America's depressed farm prices and help revive the dignity of family farms. Eventually, commodity prices would increase to levels nearing the parity value because the "true value" of donated production — calculated by converting tax savings into increased worth — would give an upward buoyancy to all farm prices. Charitable relief organizations would then be able to use the bulk of their resources to transport and distribute the donated food and fiber.

It makes no sense that U.S. taxpayers spent $5.3 billion in 1987 to store 10.3 billion bushels of corn, 1.9 billion bushels of wheat, 635 million bushels of soybeans and 235 million bushels of rice (U.S. Department of Agriculture) when even in this country some 20 million Americans go hungry for part of each month, according to a 1985 report by the Havard Physician Task Force on Hunger in America.

Our nation can no longer afford to ignore the hungry and destroy our most valuable resource: America's food production capacity which is dependent on our system of family farms. As public opinion mounts, more will be heard of this simple amendment to the IRS code, which promises to break the unholy anomaly of hunger in the midst of an abundant harvest. It would finally signal a national response to the age-old plea: Feed the hungry.

To Plan For Fall Wheat Seeding

The time is fast approaching for our wheat growers to be making plans for their fall seeding. In most cases, wheat was a very good crop this year but some local wheat may not be satisfactory due to weed seeds found in some fields. If you use local wheat, be sure you know the source and have it cleaned and treated for disease. Also, if you had a scab problem this year, do not plant wheat in the same field this fall; the fungus can remain in the soil.

Certified seed would be the best route to take if you experienced any problem this year. The extra cost for certified seed is well worth it to help insure a good crop next summer.

To Consider Alternative Protein Feeds

With the price of protein increasing, farmers and feed companies are looking for alternative sources of protein feeds. According to Glenn A. Shirk, extension dairy agent, one alternative is the use of non-protein-nitrogen (NPN), such as urea and anhydrous ammonia. When fed properly, ruminant animals are able to convert NPN into protein. Animals need to be acclimated to NPN gradually, over a period of 3 to 4 weeks. Initially, urea can be incorporated into the concentrate mix at a rate of about 0.5%, and then gradually increased to a maximum of about 1.0 to 1.5%. Or, it can be mixed at the rate of about 10 pounds per ton of normal corn silage. Another alternative is to mix about 7 pounds of anhydrous ammonia per ton of silage. If NPN is mixed with the concentrate, do not include it in the silage. Neither should NPN be used on immature, drought-stricken corn silage.

To Check Silo Size

How much silage or high moisture corn must you feed each day to keep ahead of spoilage in the silo? The amount will vary considerably from hot days to cold days. Can your herd consume this much feed? The answer to these questions depends on the diameter of the silo, how well the feed was processed and packed when it was ensiled, herd size, feeding program, season of the year and type of storage structure.

If you are ensiling high moisture ground shelled corn in an upright conventional silo, you'll need to remove at least 2 inches of grain a day in warmer weather to keep ahead of spoilage. For a 14 foot silo, that is 1,400 pounds or more of corn per day — 24 pounds per cow in a 60 cow herd. If you are ensiling whole shelled corn or ground ear corn, the material does not pack as tightly, and up to 4 inches may have to be removed daily. Four inches of this material in a 14 foot silo is 2,456 pounds — 41 pounds per cow in a 60 cow herd.

If a limited oxygen storage unit is used, sizing is less critical.

To Renovate Old Pastures

Late August and early September are good times to establish a new pasture, or renovate an old one. In fact, this is a good time of the year to make any pasture or lawn seeding. The old sod should be destroyed by cultivation or by a herbicide. After the soil has been treated with lime and fertilizer, according to a complete soil test, it can be seeded and should produce good grazing for next summer.

The advantage of a fall seeding is to permit time for the new plants to become established before the 1989 hot weather arrives. The cool, moist fall months should give the plants a good start. The Agronomy Guide lists some good seeding recommendations.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE PERILS OF POPULAR RELIGION

August 7, 1988

Background Scripture: Exodus 32.

Devotional Reading: Psalms 106: 40-48.

No public relations person would tell the story of the Israelites at Mount Sinai as the writer of the Book of Exodus writes it. As he tells it, just about everyone in the narrative is presented in an unfavorable light: the Israelites, Aaron, and even Moses.

Especially the Israelites. From our safe perspective of the 20th century, you and I can be proberly shocked at the irresponsible behaviour they exhibit. Impatient because Moses has not yet come down off the mountain, the people of Israel demand of Aaron, "Up, make us gods, who shall go before us; as for this Moses, the man who brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has become of him" (Exodus 32:1). God has brought them out of Egypt, freed them from the pursuit of the Egyptians, provided them with water and food for them in the wilderness and now, despite all of that, they are impatient and demand that Aaron provide them with idols!

THE WAY IT WAS

We commend the the writer of Exodus for telling us the way it was, not the way we would have perferred it to be. But we need to be no less acndid, for patiencke is no more a universal virtue now that it was in Moses' day and we, despite our pretensions, are probably no less impatient with God than the Israelites were. Who among us has not dispaired when it seemed that God was delayed in coming to our aid? Which of us has not grown impatient with prayer that seemed unanswered and looked for help elsewhere?

People may be more than willing to keep the covenant so long as it seems that God is running his end of the bargain according to our time schedule. But, if God insists upon being God and uses a totally different timetable, how long are we likely to wait faithfully and patiently? Popular religion is always an impatient one.

In addition to being impatient for Moses' return, the people of Israel also wanted a god they could see, handle and maybe even control. It was one thing for Moses to tell them about a God whom they could not see, but they wanted something more tangible — like the golden calf that Aaron made for them out of their offerings of gold. You and I, of course, are not very likely to ask for a golden idol, but that doesn't mean that we are any less amterialistic in our religious outlook. We may say we believe in an invisible God, but we act as if it is only the material goods in which we can trust. Popular religion is always a materialistic one.

EMOTIONAL BALANCE

Thirdly, the people of Israel wanted to turn their religion into an emotional binge. The "still, small voice" within was not enough for them. They wanted a religion that swept them off their feet and turned their insides upside down: "And the people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play" (32:6). There's nothing wrong about sitting down to "eat and drink" or even rising up "to play," so long as we don't make that a substitute for obeying our covenant with the Lord. The problem is not emotion in religion, but emotion instead of religion. The problem is substituting excitement for obedience and faithfulness, of mistaking entertainment for revelation. Those are always the attractive, compelling perils of popular religion.

People who understand farming from the ground up.

Our changes aren't earth-shaking. They're simply ways to set up the best possible conditions for growth.

And whether it's done with a plan or a plow, that's what breaking new ground is all about.

Adding ammonia to corn silage has a long list of desirable benefits not only as a protein source but also improving the silage fermentation.

However, with anhydrous ammonia there are several aspects that are less than desirable.

- A hazardous product dangerous to handle.
- It is highly volatile with much atmospheric loss
- It must be handled with special pressurized equipment.
- The rate of retention depends on moisture content of corn silage.
- There is uncertainty in calibration.

There is an alterative ammonia product which seeks to maintain the desirable and improve on the undesirable.

Martin's Hi-Protein liquid silage additive.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hog futures closed lower from 3 points to 38 points pressured by heavier than expected interior receipts and slack retail demand. Ideas that producers would continue to liquidate their stock pressured throughout the session. "DISEASE WAS EATING MY EARLY WHEAT ALIVE.

P.L. ROHRER & BRO., INC. HELPED ME FIGHT BACK WITH TWAIN."

The best way to win the battle against disease is to plant a winner like Twain. Twain's an early maturing soft red winter wheat that offers excellent protection against viral and soil borne diseases, plus very good protection against foliar disease. And Twain's a big winner in yield, too. This season, fight back and win. See us for details.

W-L Alfalfas
Why grow anything but the Best?

"W-L is very definitely a high quality seed The varieties are dependable, the crop is more persistent, and I think the hay quality is better. I took 4 cuttings last year, and the fourth was just like the first!"

Carl Kreider
Quarryville, PA

"I plant 900 acres with W-L because it gives me tonnage and quality WL 316 comes back quickly and stays fine. When you're doing as many acres as I am, that leaf to stem ratio is important"

Dean Stuart
Corning, NY

"The WL 318 has done very well We've got one bed we planted 8 years ago, and it's still producing We got four cuttings this year! And we planted some 316 this Spring, and it did exceptionally well!"

Delaware State Open Dairy Show

BY SUE CROW
Maryland Correspondent

HARRINGTON, DE. — Wednesday at the Delaware State Fair meant cattle shows. Over 200 animals were washed, clipped, combed, and cared for in anticipation of capturing the top honor of Grand champion for their particular breed. Hot weather also goes with fairs and that day was no exception. The task of placing these animals went to John Morris from Maryland and Jerry Myres from Pa.

Morris had some 100 Holsteins to place from the 56 exhibitors who entered their finest animals. The Senior Yearling from Norman Voss took the first level of honors winning the Junior Champion Ribbon. He followed later with the Senior and finally the Grand champion spot with his 7 year old Dry cow, Rocky-Mount Lilly. Hayland Farm had the Reserved Grand Champion with their aged cow.

The Ayrshire show had some 40 entries for Mr. Myres to observe. Howard Webb took the Junior and Reserve Junior placing with his Senior Heifer Calf and Junior Yearling Heifer. Both the Senior and Grand Champion ribbons as well as the Reserve Senior and Reserve Grand Champion honors went to Becky and Cindy Bell. Bells Farm H N Lanna, a two year old, took home all the glories.

For the Guernsey breed, the University of Delaware excelled in all the top honors. The Junior, Senior and Grand Champion trophies went to guernseys who had been pros at this show. U of D Rozanna, their aged cow, won some years ago and has been in this showring many times before.

A strong showing from the Jersey breed brought 40 animals into the ring. The Junior Champion went to Mid-Del Jerseys with the Reserve going to Patricia and Elizabeth Jenkins. They also took home the Senior and Grand Champion Trophy with their 4 year old cow, Gusto Milestone Fatima. The Reserve Senior and Reserve Grand went to Billee Jo and Virginia Collison. Their aged cow, Delmarlan Crystal, won the prestigious award of Supreme Best Udder. The recipients of Best Udder in each breed compete against each other for the honor of the Craig Eliason Bowl, who was an avid Jersey Breeder.

Ensure Forage Supplies Before Harvesting Crops

BY LISA RISSER

LITITZ (Lancaster) — Without a doubt, livestock farmers are going to be hurting in their pocketbooks this winter and next spring. While rain during the latter part of July diminished crop losses, most every farmer will see smaller yields in one crop or another. In order to spend their money wisely, farmers need to start planning their crops for this fall and even next year.

"A farmer shouldn't just think about getting by until next spring," commented Bruce Kreider, a multi-county extension agent who specializes in farm management. "What a farmer does this fall may affect next season's crop."

For instance, if a farmer takes corn silage off in the fall and plants barley for the spring harvest, he can plant double-crop soybean or short-season corn for silage. But doing this removes the possiblity of growing full-season corn. "A farmer needs to balance the two options," said Kreider.

It is difficult for Kreider and other crop specialists to establish a cut-and-dry formula farmers can follow to regain lost crops because each situation is different. But he did have some suggestions for farmers.

A forage shortage was the biggest fear Kreider had for livestock farmers during July. "But what I've seen in Dauphin, Berks, and Lebanon counties shows they've had enough rain to see a solid recovery in all but two crops," he reported. "What I'm worried about are double-crop soybean and corn for grain."

The earliest-planted corn didn't pollinate extremely well, didn't get ear formation, and is very short. This means farmers will harvest less tonnage than in a normal year. In addition, although late-planted corn and double-crop soybean are growing well now in many parts of Pennsylvania, they were dormant for quite some time and experts aren't sure whether they will reach full maturity before the first frost.

When making cropping decisions, Kreider advises to begin by taking an inventory of existing forages. "Make sure you have enough until your first cutting of hay."

There are two methods for determining inventory. The first involves measuring the depth of ensiled forage and assessing what is in the fields. Kreider recommends allowing for a one-third loss of crop due to weather, harvest and storage losses. With these numbers in mind, the farmer should figure out the basic pounds he'll need. Essentially he will have to figure how much dry matter goes into each cow daily and multiply it by the number of days until the first cut of hay.

The second inventory method is

Bruce Kreider will be speaking on crop alternatives at two feeding strategy meetings this week. On Monday evening, August 8, he will be at the West Fallowfield Christian Day School, south of Atglen. On Tuesday, August 9, he will be at the Lancaster Farm & Home Center.

Both meetings will begin at 7:30. Kreider will be joined by Dr. Richard Adams from Penn State, who will speak on the use of alternative feeds and feeding strategies. Alan Strock, multi-county agent based in Lancaster, will discuss culling strategies.

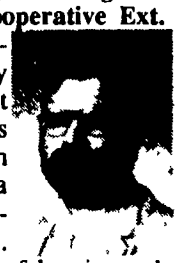
The Decision Making Process

BY JOHN DEFASSIO
Farm Management Agent
Penn State Cooperative Ext.



Decision making is an everyday occurrence that only becomes apparent when one is faced with a really tough decision to make. Since the process of decision making becomes routine let's take a look at what makes up the decision making process. 1. Setting goals. 2. Recognizing the problem or opportunity. 3. Obtaining information. 4. Considering the alternatives. 5. Making the decision. 6. Taking action. 7. Accepting responsibility. 8. Evaluating the decision.

Every management book I have ever read talks about setting goals. A goal as defined by Webster as "the end toward which effort is directed". Every manager must have goals both long range and short range to direct their efforts toward. Goals must be clear enough to be written down. Assigning a priority to each goal helps in directing your efforts toward accomplishing your goals.

Recognizing the problems that must be overcome or the opportunities that exist to accomplish your goals is not always as easy as it sounds. Problems become obvious when your expectations are greater than your results. Opportunities exist but must be carefully weighed in light of the amount of risk a manager wishes too assume.

Obtaining information requires an investment of time and possibly money. Information is necessary to define the characteristics of a problem and the alternatives available to solve the problem. The amount of investment a manager makes in obtaining information should be related to the value the information is going to add toward solving the problem.

After the information is obtained it must be organized in a manor that will permit the manager to compare the various outcome of each solution to the problem. Relying on the prioritized goals narrows the choices.

The time has now come to make your decision. This is strictly a judgement call. What may be most desirable (or least undesirable) for some may be the opposite for others, the choice is yours.

Decisions are useless unless you take action. The ability to get things done is determining the magnitude of the job, estimating the necessary resources and then acting in time.

Farmers accept the responsibility for their decisions knowing that their livelihood and families depend on them. Anyone unwilling to accept responsibility for their decisions does not belong in farming.

To complete the decision making process a manager must evaluate the outcome of a decision. Evaluating the decision can lead to improved decision making skills.

Making decisions that affect the profitability of your farm business is farm management. At Penn State Cooperative Extension we are continually trying to provide educational information to the farmer that can be used in the decision making process. One decision making tool available through your extension office is Finpack.

Finpack is a computerized financial analysis program developed by the University of Minnesota cooperative extension.

The Decision Making Process

Although it has been in existence since 1972 until this year it was only available in IBM format. This year Finpack was made available in the Macintosh format and will be utilized by Penn State University Cooperative Extension. Finpack was developed as a general farm financial analysis program. Because of it's flexibility Finpack can be adapted to any farm operation or enterprise.

Finpack, or financial package, contains four computer programs designed to be used by farmers in decision making. Given today's economic conditions, coupled with the ever changing price/cost conditions, an in-depth study of the profitability, liquidity and solvency potential of any farm is necessary for good decision making. The four programs are FINLRB, FINTRAN, FINFLO, and FINAN. Each of the programs can operate independently of the others but using all four in conjunction with each other provides the most information. The four programs provide the framework for decision making by helping the manager obtain information and consider the alternatives.

FINLRB, or financial long range budgeting, provides the structure to compare alternatives in your farm operation. The comparison takes into consideration long range profitability, debt repayment ability and potential for net worth growth. FINLRB provides a comparison of your current operation with two alternative plans. The alternative plans could involve new enterprises, new resources, different sizes or combinations of enterprises, changes in efficiency or changes in debt structure. With FINLRB considering the alternatives before implementing the actual changes is simplified. Once a viable long range goal is decided upon FINTRAN or FINFLO can be used to project a cash flow plan for the immediate future.

FINTRAN, or financial transition, is used to project three years of of farm cash flow. This tool can be useful in planning for the cash flow needs during the transitional period of taking action on the goal selected through FINLRB. FINTRAN projects quarterly cash flows for the first year and annual cash flows for the second and third years. In addition projections are provided for the profit and loss and change in net worth for each year planned.

FINFLO, or financial cash flow, is used to project the cash flow for one business year. This tool details the cash inflows and outflows for the coming year on a monthly basis. FINFLO also details the monthly loan transactions, inventory, production, feeding and sales of crop and livestock projections. In addition , profit or loss and change in net worth are projected for the year. By using a computerized model developing and refining a cash flow plan are simplified.

FINAN, or financial analysis, is designed to analyze last years financial performance. This analysis starts with the farm's detailed financial position at the beginning of the year. The income and expenses are examined along with the profitability, liquidity, and solvency of the farm business. FINAN examines the financial position at the end of the year and stores this information to produce a comparative trend chart over the period of years a farmer participates in such an analysis. This provides the evaluation necessary to complete the decision making process and increase the farm manager's ability to make better decisions.

The FINPACK program is used by Penn State Cooperative Extension as an educational tool to teach financial concepts to farm managers. In order to utilize this tool effectively the farm manager needs accurate and detailed records. The farm management agents of Penn State cooperative extension welcome the opportunity to provide this educational tool to area farmers. For more information on FINPACK contact your county extension office.

State Junior Dairy Show In Delaware

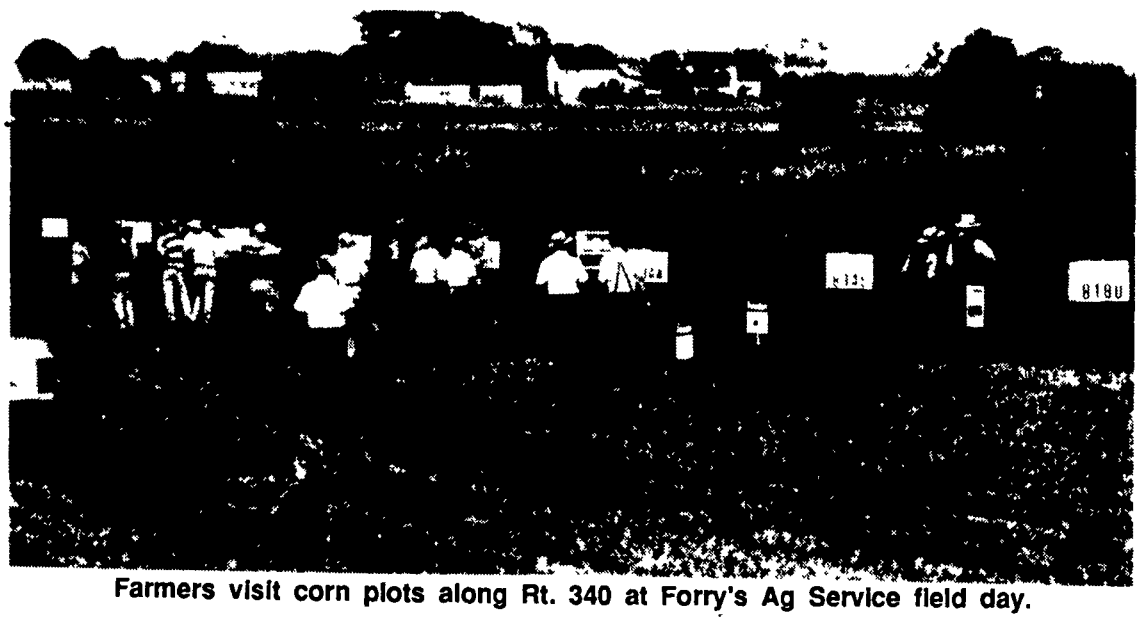
Forry's Field Day Held

INTERCOURSE — At a field day under the direction of Forry's Ag Service in the park here Thursday farmers were cautioned to use the label directions when mixing and applying herbicides and pesticides. "The label is a legal document that makes you responsible when you use the chemical," said Steve Fisher, FMC Corporation. "Keep the label handy so if you need medical attention the doctor will know what to give you."

Fisher also said farmers should store chemicals away from the barn and feeds, lock the chemicals up so children and unauthorized persons cannot reach them, and notify firemen where the chemicals are stored.

Jeff Middleton, Ciba-Geigy, told farmers that whenever they use chemicals they should use proper protective equipment. A respirator, goggles, rubber gloves without linings, and cover clothes that can be removed and washed separately or discarded were items suggested to be used. "Never wear leather shoes or gloves with linings," Middleton said. "These materials can absorb the chemical and keep it with you long after you have finished mixing and applying the chemical. Keep safety in the front, not the back, of your mind all the time," Middleton said.

Richard Forry, President of Forry's Ag Service, that provides custom application for farm chemicals, said this was the first summer field day they have planned. Last winter everyone was snowed in when the field day was scheduled. Product presentations, field tours, and a pig roast at noon were features of the day's event. Sponsors of the field day along with Forrys were Lebanon Chemical, Ciba-Geigy, FMC, Servos Seed Company, Dow Chemical Company, and DuPont.



Farmers visit corn plots along Rt. 340 at Forry's Ag Service field day.

New Test:Right™ can add points to your fat test

Is fat test a problem on your farm? New Test:Right dairy feed from Agway is the answer.

You're probably aware that feeding whole cottonseed can increase the fat level in your milk. But if you've fed cottonseed in the past, you're aware of the handling and storage problems.

New Test:Right is the only pelleted dairy feed that includes whole cottonseed, regulated protein solubility, and regulated carbohydrates in an easy-to-handle, easy-to-feed pellet. And it's also easy to see the difference that an increase in fat test can make in your milk check!

If you want to increase your milkfat content, and your profits, talk to your Agway Farm Enterprise Salesperson about new Test:Right. He can balance your feeding program with the on-farm Ration Balancing Computer System and prescribe the correct Test:Right feed for optimum milk production and fat test results on your farm.

by adding this to your feed.

Katrina Named Supreme Champion

Lebanon Fair Color Breed Dairy Winners

BY PAT PURCELL

LEBANON — Timing. It's all in the timing and it was for the 1988 Lebanon Fair Junior Dairy Show Supreme Champion. David Lentz was taken by surprise when his 4-year-old Holstein 4-H grand champion, Katrina, captured the coveted fair supreme title after Tuesday evening's colored breed show.

Katrina freshened just a few days earlier than what David had hoped for, but last year's supreme dairy entry owned by Wesley Harding, an Ayrshire, Green Brae Pudges Stacey, will not freshen for atleast two more weeks.

Although Lentz, who was selected as 4-H champion showman the following day did an excellent job of presenting his entry, Lentz gave all the credit for the win to Katrina.

"She earned it. The judge liked her large, strong frame and the depth and smoothness of her fore udder attachment. She has tremendous dairyness," said Lentz.

The supreme 4-H and FFA champion was selected from all the grand champions following the color breed show Tuesday evening. Peter Witmer, Willow Street, judged the Guernsey and Brown Swiss entries and Dwight Hunter, West Alexander, presided over the Ayrshire and Jersey competition. In the showmanship and fitting contests held Wednesday, Rebecca Sonnen, the 1988 Pennsylvania Dairy Princess added another jewel to her crown when she was selected as the champion fitter of the dairy competition. David Lentz was named champion showman.

Ayrshire Show

In the Ayrshire show the Maulfairs of Jonestown and the Harding family from Lebanon shared the top spots. Dale Maulfair took the open grand championship with Maulfair Acres Oracle Dena, a 6-year-old sired by Hammonds Oracle out of Cove Creek Boys Deb. Heather Hernley of Lebanon took the open reserve title with her 3-year-old, Green Brae Larry's Jess.

Although Wes Harding is no longer competing in 4-H, the Harding family has not relinquished its command of the junior competition. Christopher and Laura Harding took the 4-H grand and reserve honors, while Wesley captured the FFA grand champion title. Dale Maulfair took the open junior title and Laura Harding took the reserve junior spot.

Brown Swiss

Teresa Hill repeated last year's performance by capturing the open and FFA grand champion rosettes with 4-year-old Little Hill Maples Marge. Marge was sired by Maple Grove Performer and her dam is Little hill Improver Margarine. Open reserve champion went to Judy Ann Mase and FFA reserve grand title went to Bruce Heilinger. In the 4-H division it was Teresa Hill with her 4-H project, Little Hill Kings Candy and Judy Ann Mase took the 4-H reserve spot.

Mike Kunkle got a great birthday present. It was his best ever as far as birthdays and in showing. Kunkle from Jonestown took both open and FFA junior and reserve junior championships.

Guernsey

Lebanon Valley dominated the Guernsey show. Lebanon Valley Diamond Katie captured the grand honors for Thomas Smith of David Lentz exhibited his large, strong Holstein into the winner's circle twice in one day. Katrina took the grand championship title in the Holstein show and went on to be named the 1988 Lebanon Fair supreme dairy champion at the conclusion of the color breed show on Tuesday evening. Lentz was also named the 4-H champion showman.

Mike Kunkle celebrated his birthday by exhibiting both Brown Swiss junior and reserve junior champions in the FFA and open classes. Happy Birthday!

Judy Ann Mase led Jessie Improver Lena to the 4-H reserve grand championship in the Brown Swiss division.

Guernsey 4-H junior champion Lebanon Valley Adrion Gwen was shown by Thomas Hostetter of Annville.

The satisfaction that comes from doing a good job of farming

Liming is one of the most important factors in keeping your soil in the highest productive range A good pasture with a pH of 6 5 or higher for example will make 300 to 400 lbs of beef per acre and produce up to $100 gross income per acre This means with the help of lime profits from pastures can compare favorably with feed or grain crops

Blair Co. Holstein Sale

BY BETSY YODER
Huntingdon Co. Correspondent

MARTINSBURG (Blair) — Temperatures and bidding were hot at the annual Blair County Holstein Sale held Friday, July 29, at Memorial Park in Martinsburg. A large crowd, representing a large area, was on hand to see a high quality group of cattle being sold.

A pair of twins sired by Walkway Chief Mark gained many second and third glances and when the gavel fell Mammoth-Spring Dora-Twin topped the sale at $2,500. Larry Kulp, Martinsburg, bought this outstanding 2 year old who is bred to the popular Tri-Town Steady Spipper. Her dam, a Lime-Hollow Elevation Mars daughter, has records to 22,430 milk and 826 fat, and is scored very good 86. Michele Davenport of Mt. Holy Springs consigned this stylish young cow and her twin sister.

Spring Lane Bell Joni was the second high seller at a price of $2,025. She is a Carlin-M Ivanhoe Bell daughter who will be fresh in September with her first calf; she is bred to Tri-Day Valiant Gold. Her dam is an Elevation daughter with records to 21,530 milk and 849 fat. Joni was brought to the sale by Tom Kelly, Tyrone, and she went home with James and Bonnie Weddle of Hagerstown, Md.

The Weddles' daughter, Jennifer Kay, bought the third high selling animal for $2,000. She is the twin sister of the top seller. She is bred to Coldsprings Levi.

Burket Falls Farm of East Freedom also sold a two year old for $2,000. Burket-Falls MM Nellie-ET is a Whittier Farms Ned Boy daughter and is a positive red carrier. Her dam, Burket-Falls Mini Mae-Red-ET, is scored 88 and has records to 22,491 of milk and 853 of fat. Phil Pheasant of Martinsburg bought this stylish cow.

Hillmont Jetson Grace also netted a price of $2,000 which was paid by Russell Wyles. She is a daughter of Brooks-Twain Jetson-Parker-ET, a son of the well-known Browncroft Jetson. Her dam is scored 87 and has records to 23,436 of milk and 804 of fat.

A fancy March calf sired by Glendell Arlinda Chief garnered a price of $1,375. She was purchased by Joseph and Marian Druist and their son, who had sold fishing worms and trapped in order to have money to buy a calf of his own. This kind of dedication is what is needed to be a success in the dairy industry. Richard Fox and sons consigned this calf.

A total of 45 head of quality cattle were sold for an average of $1,322. Howard Hammond and Sherman Allen were in charge of pedigrees and auctioneering.

Top seller of the Blair Co. Holstein Sale was Mammoth Spring Dora-Twin. She was purchased by Larry Kulp of Martinsburg, Pa. for $2,500. He is shown with the consigner, Michele Davenport of Mt. Holy Springs, Pa. Steve Pheasant is at the halter.

The second high seller of the evening was Spring-Lane Bell Joni. (L-R) Tom Kelly of Tyrone was the consigner. This springing heifer was purchased by Bonnie and James Weddle of Hagerstown Md. for $2,025. Kenny Diebold is at the halter.

gating the potential impact of a phosphate ban on the water quality in the lower Susquehanna River Basin and Chesapeake Bay. The study concluded that the effect of a ban on phosphorus loadings to the Bay would have been a 3.2 percent reduction in 1986. Future scenarious point to a 7.1 percent decline for an average year of rainfall.

"It's important to assess the impact of a phosphate detergent ban before passing any state legislation," Dr. Long noted in citing the reason for the Penn State Study. Findings of the study were released just three months before State Representative Jeffrey Coy introduced legislation in June to ban phosphate detergents in Pennsylvania. On that bill's heels was a second nutrient-reduction bill introduced by the Franklin County Representative calling for nutrient management plans for all agricultural operations.

"You must keep things in perspective," Long remarked. Pennsylvania now has a policy limiting the total phosphate effluent in the lower Susquehanna River basin to 2.0 mg/liter for all major dischargers. A ban would affect these plants to a lesser extent and would not affect discharge plants that already remove phosphorus in the lower river basin. Furthermore, many consumers currently use low-phosphate or phosphate-free detergents in the lower Susquehanna River Basin due to its proximity to Maryland where a phosphate ban now exists. Nine states currently implement phosphate detergent bans in the United States.

Despite these qualifiers, proponents of a phosphate detergent ban for Pennsylvania argue that a 3 or 4 percent impact would still help reduce phosphate loadings into the Bay and would have beneficial impacts statewide. A phosphate detergent ban is a small but important step in the right direction. PACDD currently opposes the complete banning of phosphate detergents in Pennsylvania and is studying the impact of the proposed legislation.

Low-input agriculture was the theme for Friday night's banquet as John Haberern, Senior Vice-President of Rodale Press, presented a spectacular slide presentation on Rodale Press and Rodale Institute's research facility in Emmaus, PA. A pioneer in the field of low-input or sustainable agriculture, Rodale Press strives to find new ways of maximizing the resources of a farm operation with limited purchased inputs.

"We put our money where our mouth is," began Mr. Haberern. "We're proving through our research that you can use less inputs and still get good crop yields with a net gain to your pocketbook. Regenerative or low-input agriculture means you can improve your natural resource base while using it for crop production."

Haberern also stressed that the time has come where conservation will not play a secondary role to profit. With the passage of the 1985 conservation programs under the federal farm bill, conservation is no longer an optional "add-on," but a necessary component of food production. "The proper marriage of agricultural production with regenerative conservation will produce good yields without soil loss," he concluded.

Other educational programs during Friday included a presentation by Kathy McKenna, Bureau of Forestry, on the Pennsylvania Natural Diversity Inventory, a catalog of endangered plants and animals used by state officials for protection purposes. Walter R. Rossman, a Cambria County District Director and employee of PenElec Co., teamed up with Dr. Henry Gerhold of Penn State University and Norman Lacasse of the Bureau of Forestry to share the successes they are having in municipal tree restoration programs, a cooperative urban tree program between electric utilities and municipalities.

Computer communications was also part of the conference, with a presentation on Penn State's computer-based library called PenPages. Conservation districts also shared their trials and tribulations in the computer world during a meeting of the districts' Computer Committee. Also on Friday afternoon was a special tour to nearby Rothrock State Forest, where a demonstration site of clearcut practices was shown to the Association's Forest, Recreation & Wildlife Committee.

Saturday's events included a breakfast address by Representative Ruth Rudy of Centre County followed by the business session of PACDD's Executive Council. A special report on solid waste management in West Germany was presented by Robert Struble, Jr., Chester County District Director, who traveled to Germany in 1986 to study the country's innovations in solid waste disposal and recycling. Agency reports were also provided by the PA Game Commission, State Conservation Commission, and Soil Conservation Service, USDA.

Ensure Forage Supplies

used most often by experienced farmers who've had the same number of cows for several years. According to Kreider, they know how full the silo and barn must be to get by.

"A farmer should get control of his forage needs first because it's costly to buy," said Kreider. This means using corn for silage if need be. Corn fields where the crop has less ear formation and kernel development should be ensiled first.

After making corn silage, if the farmer is still short on forage, he'll need to plant something this fall. The options are:

•Spring Oats. Planting this will yield a full crop in fall. It is a versatile grain that can be grazed, ensiloed, or baled. It won't work where there is a Triazine carryover.

•Brassicas. These are cold-weather crops that grow through December and include turnips and rape. Because they are wet, lush, and have little fiber, they don't ensile well and won't dry enough to use as hay. Therefore they should be grazed to get full usage of them. They can be planted with a precision planter such as a no-till drill. Rape should be seeded at 3½ to 4 pounds per acre, while turnips should be seeded at 1½ to 2 pounds per acre. Grazing should be in strips as larger areas result in trampling.

•Sudan Sorghum Grass. Used for summer and fall growth, this grass only grows during hot weather.

•Rye. A choice for those able to graze animals. It grows 6 to 8 inches and will sit until spring when it will grow tall and can be harvested as forage.

For the grain-poor farmer, there are no options between now and fall that will provide grain. "They'll have to rely on buying strategies between now and June," stated Kreider. If cash is a problem, the farmer's biggest option is barley. There will be a yield difference between planting barley and full-season corn, but the farmer would have grain between June and October. If the farmer chooses barley, Kreider recommends planting soybeans after harvest rather than corn as the most economically feasible crop.

The Greene Philosophy: Living Life To Its Fullest

BY CAROLYN HILSDON GILLES
Crawford County Correspondent

SPRINGBORO (Crawford) — The Greenes of Springboro will tell you that "Management is the whole key." Management has been their key to success in farming and the key to 40 years of successful diabetes management for Mary.

In 1947, Mary Cooper Greene was diagnosed as a Type I diabetic. They gave her 20 years to live. Over 40 years later, she has written her life story, "Living With a Broken String, as a message of hope to diabetics everywhere. "What it says is that you can do it." She is quite honest about the obstacles she faced. Mary tells the bad and the good. She gives credit for her excellent dietary control to her "miracle machine," the blood glucose monitoring machine. She calls it a "breakthrough in diabetes management." With the help of such modern technology, she said that diabetics can now look forward to a normal life expectancy. Said John Sr., "The story that she's trying to relay there is even though she's a diabetic, she's had a full life. She's done everything that she really wanted to do." Any extra precautions that Mary had to take were but a small price to pay to keep her disease manageable and enhance the quality of her life.

Greenes have been in the Conneaut Valley since 1827, but John Sr. bought the first 100-acres of their present farm in 1945, the year he graduated from high school, and began a dairy operation. From 1948 to 1962, in partnership with his brother, he expanded the acreage to 300-acres and built the barn and the house. John and Mary married in 1962 and, in 1963, John and his brother dissolved their partnership. John milked cows until 1972.

The Greene farm now has approximately 800-acres. Over the years, they raised grain, strawberries and cabbage. The Greenes started the first "pick-your-own" strawberry operation in the area and operated it for 17 years. Timothy seed has also been a good crop for them. Said John, Sr., "It's paid the taxes and maintained the ground."

Mary, "Old John" and "Young John" all live together in their spacious country home but operate separate businesses. John Jr. runs a dairy operation of 120 Registered Holsteins, with 60 milking. He leases 175-acres from his dad and 100 from Shadeland for pasture and crops for his feed of high moisture corn and hay. His room is lined with award ribbons and certificates. He earned the FFA American Farmer Award in 1985. He has shown his cattle for 7 years, since his junior year in high school.

Since he started dairying, Young John has added two silos to the farm, put up a new machinery building and renovated an existing machinery building into a heifer barn. He also renovated the barn, taking out the stanchions and replacing them with tie-stalls. In addition, he has rerouted a creek bed on the property to get ready for manure storage.

John Sr. and Mary would have gladly moved with Young John to a farm where there was better ground. John Sr. describes his land as "class 4 and 5...stoney." The land is also spread out on disconnected parcels. But John Jr. said, "No, Dad. You did it here, and I want to." So John Sr. advised his son to do three things if he wanted to be successful: 1) Increase his storage facility; 2) Bring all his cattle home; and 3) Plan for manure sotrage. Young John has a lot of plans but he is proceeding on a cash basis, trying to keep his head above water and stay out of debt. His immediate goal is to increase his herd average and he's proud that last year he was able to increase the numbers and increase the herd average too.

John Jr.'s first cow freshened in 1982. When he started out, his rolling herd average was about 16,000. His DHIA averages for June, 1988 were 20,186, with 734 fat and 671 protein. He raises his own replacements and has done all his own breeding for about 4 years. For the past two years, he has been a member of the Coba Select Sires PGA Program.

John Sr. has been heavily into grain, but is pulling out because the Greenes feel strongly against voluntarily participating in government programs. They choose to maintain their independence and not get tied up in government regulations. Two years ago, they drilled a 3,700 feet deep gas well. Their goal is to be as self-sufficient as possible. They presently have several hundred acres in timothy seed but much of their land is sitting idle with a cover crop or being rented out for pasture. Said Mary, "We just have such a conscience. We just don't think that the average American taxpayer needs to support us because we choose to farm. If we can't make it farming, John and I will go out and get a job...We just want to be independent. We've chosen this way and we're not sorry..."

John Sr. describes his family as "simple, humble people." Indeed the Greenes are down-to-earth people who care about their neighbors and their community. John Sr. served for 10 years on the School Board, serving four years as its president.

But there is one thing unusual about the Greenes. Many people talk about things they'd like to do, places they'd like to visit. The Greenes are people of action.

The Greene Philosophy:

They've been to Europe twice, Hawaii once and gone "around the world in 80 days" on the QE2. They love to travel and pledged to do so while they could enjoy it to the fullest. They earned the money the hard way. Said Mary, "The whole time we had the dairy, we just kept our heads right to the grindstone. In fact, I can hardly remember ever going out to dinner all the time we had dairy cattle." Still, they've done just about everything anybody could want to do. Said Mary, "If we die tomorrow, we can't complain. It's been wonderful." And their travels have only made them more fully appreciate what they have at home. Said John, "There's no nation on earth that's been blest like this country."

The idea to share their inspirational story with others first came from Dr. B. Leonard Snider, an Erie dermatologist, and Dr. Barry D. Stamm, Chief Opthamologist at Hamot Hospital in Erie. The book, hot off the presses, has been endorsed by the Erie Diabetes Association. Mary had Dr. David Kirkpatrick read it over for medical accuracy. He indicated that it gave "support to the beginning diabetic to let them know that they can lead a normal life."

Other "diabetes how-to" books lay out "dos and don'ts" but Mary has a real ministry to the diabetic. She knows what it is to go to work with it and live with it. She gives no medical advice. She just speaks from her experience. Needless to say, Mary is in demand as a motivational speaker for diabetics. She is scheduled to speak at the spring rally of the American Diabetic Association, Harrisburg.

When she first wrote her book, a publisher wanted to make it into a sympathetic "feel sorry for Mary book." That's not what she had in mind. The book presents the Greenes' basic philosophy of life. It is a personal gift. When you read it, you feel you know Mary and John Greene. Said Mary, "When I think back to 1947 when I as a young girl first faced the reality of life with diabetes, my life, I'm sure, would have been much easier had someone written their story for me."

Mary Cooper Greene's book is available for $12.95 (plus PA sales tax) from Greene Associates, P.O. Box G, Springboro, PA 16435-9666.

When all is said and done, let it be said that the Greenes have enjoyed life to its fullest. They haven't let anything hold them back.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

We had very pleasant weather for our trip to New York State. The first night was spent with our daughter, Cindy, who cooked us a nice venison meal. Then she drove us through game lands in Wyoming County and we saw five deer, one racoon and one porcupine. I'd never realized before how awkwardly a porcupine moves. This large rodent with its stiff sharp bristles lumbered across the road in front of us as we moved slowly through the woods.

We were lucky in finding the three couples that we visited as we only had their addresses. Yet each time that we phoned, we were only a few blocks or a few miles away.

The first couple in Homer, N.Y. had recently moved from their poultry farm into a house in town. They showed us their home and garden and insisted that we stay for lunch. She even gave me several zucchini recipes as I'd taken some along for her.

The next family lived near Auburn, N.Y. — I had not seen them since 1981 when we went to Europe together. Their farm house had burned last year and a new one was built on the old foundation. They even surprised us by inviting another couple who I knew. We were shown his big garden and allowed to pick a box of large red raspberries from some bushes in their yard. I had taken some of my garden sweet corn along for them.

We did a bit of fishing from the shores of the Susquehanna River and also Lake Stevens as we hadn't taken our boat along on the trip. I caught three small perch but threw them back. On the way home we stopped at Arnot and saw a couple that we met on the Alaska trip last year. He has a large flower garden.

Surprise!

Few things brighten a day like a pleasant surprise. (Of course there are unpleasant surprises that come along, too, but the pleasant sort are more uplifting to think about.)

Maybe it's a letter from a far-away friend, a touching and no-special-reason bit of thoughtfulness by a loved one, or even finding an extra couple of bucks in your wallet.

Most of our lives are reasonably predictable. Occasionally among the day-to-day routine come Major Events, things planned for weeks, perhaps months. Sometimes preparations for those become so exhausting that the actual event is almost an anti-climax of the anticipation.

But, in between, those little surprises keep us going.

I spied a pretty one in the woods along the meadow stream a few evenings ago. Perched behind the Farmer on the three-wheeler, headed out to check crops progress, the last thing I expected to see were lilies. But there they were, a cluster of six-foot high spikes, each topped with a dozen pinkish-orange, heavily speckled, lily blooms.

We've been here two dozen years and never saw them before. Maybe they've been there all along, concealed by the rabbit-riddled briar patches, through which the relocated equipment field road now passes.

Our baby hawk was a surprise first spotted just yards from the lilies' location. Though not really "ours," this juvenile red-tail, hatched in the swaying top of a towering oak in the woodlot, keeps us scanning the skies during every trip through the meadow. It screams endlessly for its mother's attention, swoops low over our heads with apparent curiosity, and has stirred our fiercely protective feelings about its well-being.

Puttering around the greenhouse a few minutes each morning usually turns up some sort of small, pleasaurable surprise.

The "non-stop" begonia is genuinely living up to its nickname, (not all plants do), continuously putting out fire-engine-red blooms. At some past point, a wax begonia pollinated, ripened its near-microscopic seed, and dropped some into a neighboring cyclamen. That secret came out only after a couple of dark-leaved wax begonia volunteers turned up at the feet of the cyclamen's fuschia blooms.

And, splotch of bright blue turned up under the leaf of an African violet which had languished all summer. Its brilliant color earned the shelved plant a move from an obscure spot in the greenhouse to a place of visibility and honor in the kitchen.

Though her condition made it predictable, housecat Monkey's delivery of eight -- count 'em -- black and white kittens set a new farmstead record. Surprisingly, she hasn't tried to move this family behind the living room couch. However, four of them turned up on the attic landing one recent day before we realized what was going on and put a halt to the relocation.

Welcome surprise has been the delivery of a heifer calf after a several-month run of bulls. And another. And another, and another, until a half-dozen baby girls have replaced the parade of bull twins.

A cow puttering around the backyard isn't all that much of a surprise around here. And certainly not a pleasant one. But, a heifer named Promise has proved the exception.

The mistake probably began with her naming. Past experience has shown that animals named such upbeat things as Best, Prize, Hopeful -- and Promise -- inevitably will live at odds with those labels. True to form, the strapping big, nicely-conformed Promise was unable to stand after routine calving three weeks ago. Vet examination brought a diagnosis of possible brain swelling from perhaps an injury to her head during labor.

Relocated to the shaded back yard, she tried repeatedly to stand. Her front end just refused to function properly, despite her valiant attempts. When we were beginning to wonder if she would ever walk again, a glance out the back kitchen window Sunday afternoon revealed a slightly wobbly Promise standing on "all fours." Never mind that she's eaten off an array of edible perennials around the yard.

I've always thought a gardener to keep things trimmed would be a nice touch. That I would end up with a cow doing it isn't much of a surprise.

Greencastle Horse, Pony

The American Agriculturist magazine recently announced that the Greencastle 4-H Horse and Pony Club won an award of excellence in its National Horse Judging Contest. The club leaders Linda Golden, Antrim Church Road, Greencastle, and Linda Geesaman, Manheim Road, Waynesboro, provide a pictorial judging experience for the members. Their placings are sent into the magazine and analyzed. Those groups who do well receive recognition. Approximately one in 20 groups receive the award of excellence. The 4-H Horse Program is sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension. For more information call 263-9226.

Peachy Ideas For Jams And Jellies

Preparing homemade jellies and jams during the summer months is a fun way to preserve seasonal fruits and vegetables. Jams and jellies are no longer limited to using traditional standbys such as peaches, strawberries and grapes; many cooks experiment with unusual ingredients such as peppers, corn cobs and tomatoes. And, they insist, those unique jellies have turned into family favorites.

Hard to believe? Try some. What could be more convincing than tasting these jellies and jams concocted in your own kitchen?

Today, many cooks find it a real time-saving to freeze jellies. Did you know that all jellies and jams can be frozen even if they aren't specified as freezer jellies and jams? Let them set at room temperature until thick but not longer than 24 hours, then freeze.

Do not seal freezer jellies with paraffin. For those who like to store their jellies at room temperature, follow these steps:

Prepare glasses and lids: check glasses to be sure there are no nicks, cracks, or sharp edges. Wash glasses and lids in hot soapy water; rinse well. Invert lids on dish rack or clean towel, away from draft, to drain dry. To sterilize glasses, place glasses in large saucepan or kettle and cover with water; over high heat, heat to boiling. Reduce heat to medium; boil gently 10 minutes. Leave glasses in hot water until just before putting jelly on to cook, then remove and invert on clean towels to drain.

Melt paraffin: Place paraffin in small, clean can; place can in 2-quart saucepan filled with 1-inch waqter. Over medium heat, heat uncovered, until paraffin melts; keep warm.

Immediately after filling jars with jelly to within ½ -inch from top, pour about 1 tablespoon hot paraffin over jelly to make ⅛ -inch-thick layer that covers jelly completely, spreading paraffin with tip of spoon so it touches side of glass all around. Prick air bubbles in paraffin. When cool, cover glasses with lids. Store unopened jelly in cool, dark, dry place to use within a year. Jelly must be refrigerated after opened.

PEPPER JELLY

2 cups peppers, green, red or yellow
2 cups water
1 cup vinegar
3 cups pepper juice
4 cups sugar
1 package dry pectin
¼ teaspoon butter
2 to 3 drops food coloring (optional)

Wash, remove stems and grind 5 to 7 average size peppers. Measure 2 cups.

Measure water, vinegar, and ground peppers into a 3-quart pan.

Bring mixture to a boil and simmer for 15 minutes.

Strain cooked pepper mixture.

Measure sugar into bowl to be added later. Measure pepper juice into 6 or 8-quart kettle. If short of juice, fill last cup with water to equal exact amount. Add the dry pectin to juice in kettle. Stir well. Place over high heat. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly to avoid scorching. Add the pre-measured sugar. Mix well. Bring to a full rolling boil. Add the butter and continue stirring. Boil hard for exactly 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Skim foam. Pour into prepared glasses. Seal. Makes five 8-ounce jars.

CIDER JELLY

4 cups apple cider or apple juice
1 1¾ -ounce package powdered fruit pectin
5 cups sugar

In a 5-quart Dutch oven or saucepan, mix apple cider and pectin; over high heat, heat to boiling, stirring frequently; immediately stir in sugar. Stirring constantly, heat until mixture comes to a full rolling boil; boil 1 minute. Remove from heat; with metal spoon, skim foam.

Immediately ladle jelly into glasses to within ½ -inch from top. Seal.

GRAPE JAM

4 pounds grapes
7½ cups sugar
1 box dry pectin

Remove stems from grapes. Slip skins and set aside. Add 1 cup water to pulp. Cover and simmer for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Sieve to remove seeds. Grind or finely chop skins. Stir into sieved pulp.

Measure 6 cups grape pulp and pour into 6 or 8-quart saucepot. Measure sugar and set aside. Stir pectin into prepared fruit. (Saucepot must be no more than ⅓ full to allow for a rolling boil. Bring to a full boil over high heat, stirring constantly. At once stir in sugar. Stir and bring to a full rolling boil for 1 minute, stirring constantly.

Remove from heat. Skim off foam with large metal spoon, immediately ladle into hot jars, leaving ¼ -inch space at top. Cover jars with hot lids. Screw bands on firmly. Place in boiling water bath, carefully setting jars on rack in canner or large saucepot of boiling water. Water should cover jars by 1 to 2 inches. Cover canner and return the water to a boil, then boil 5 minutes. Let jam stand to cool. Check seals. Jar lids shoudl be slightly concave or remain so when pressed. Remove bands from jars. Store jam in a cool, dry place.

QUESTION - Mrs. Florence Gruber would like a recipe for Mush cake or Mush pie. Her mother made it so that it could be eaten with sausage or as a cake.

QUESTION - Lana Stoner, Greencastle, requests a recipe for pineapple fritters. She said the batter is deep fried and the juice from the pineapples is used to make a sauce to pour on the fritters.

QUESTION - Virginia Brubaker, Manheim, requests a recipe for a pear tart that appeared in this paper a few weeks ago. She recalls that the recipe, which she misplaced, uses sour cream.

QUESTION - J. M. Hege of Millen, Ga., requests a recipe for sweet gherkins pickles.

QUESTION - Margaret Gockley of Mohnton would like to know if fondant that is used in chocolate coating cherries can be used in other ways.

QUESTION - Sandra Reith, Emmaus, requests a recipe for "Dairy Queen Ice Cream" that appeared in this paper.

QUESTION - Bonnie Blain, Halifax, requests a recipe for cinnamon raisin biscuits similar to those made at Hardees and she'd like a recipe for Oreo® cookies.

QUESTION - Mrs. Fillmore Reimensnyder of Wilton is looking for a recipe for zucchini cake that uses crushed pineapple.

QUESTION - Mrs. Delmer Simcox of Port Deposit, Md., and several other readers have asked about clear jell, an ingredient that was listed in several recipes recently. She would like to know what it is and where it can be purchased. Clear jell is a modified food starch made for commercial food processors. You must buy it from someone who buys it in quantity such as a bulk food store. You can use it in the same proportion as cornstarch. It can be reheated and the jel does not not breakdown or separate. It does not weep like cornstarch. I know of several local stores that sell it, but readers such as Mrs. Simcox live far away and would like to order through the mail. Do any of you know a place that will mail it to consumers?

QUESTION - Louise Walters, Wytheville, Va., needs to find a source to purchase oat bran. She also requests recipes using oat bran.

What's New?

People who forget to water their plants or are off on vacation have no need to worry with the Self Watering Planters now available. The Planters, of contemporary design, consist of a high gloss shell that acts as a saucer and water reservoir. A capillary system brings the right amount of water and nutrients into the soil to nourish the plant. An indicator shows when its time to fill the reservoir. The Planter's outer shell is easily removed for cleaning. Available in jade, mocha, vanilla, pewter, French blue and mauve rose, this convenient Planter comes in an array of sizes with diameters ranging from 6-½" to 12-½".

For the gardener who enjoys growing vegetables and flowers, there is also an Anywhere Garden System. The self-watering device and built-in reservoir help insure that plants get the water they need. Water is drawn up from the one-gallon reservoir by a "wick" and distributed through capillary action into the plant soil. Holes in the system's drain tray let excess water flow out to avoid damaging roots. Soil mix and trellis kits are available.

Wayne County Fair

The 12th annual Wayne County Junior Livestock Sale will be Saturday, Aug. 13, 7 p.m. at the Wayne County Fairgrounds.

All prospective buyers will be treated to a beef barbecue from 5 to 6:30 p.m., just prior to the sale.

The sale will serve as a climax for more than 100 young people who have been raising livestock project animals in the 4-H program. Members who are raising beef steers have had their animals on agrain feeding program since last October, while the sheep and hog members placed animals on finishing rations early this spring.

It is ex pected that 20 steers, 110 hogs, and 57 lambs will be offered for sale. All will be of market weight with the steers weighing about 1,000 pounds liveweight, the hogs approximately 200 pounds, and the lambs 100 pounds.

Animals will be weighed Friday morning, the day prior to the sale, for the purpose of determining sale weight. They will receive no feed or water from Thursday midnight until after thay are weighed.

The sale will be conducted as an auction, with the animals being sold to the highest bidder. Anyone who does not feel comfortable bidding in an auction to make arrangements to have a 4-H leader do the bidding and act as the buyer. Such persons should contact the Agricultural Extension Office to make the necessary arrangements and to secure information on prevailing market prices.

Buyers will receive duplicate ribbons based on judging conducted earlier in the week. Special banners will be presented to the buyers of the three grand champion and three reserve grand champion animals.

Following the sale, arrangements can be made for transportation and processing of the animals.

The sale steering committee consists of Clyde Eltz, Ellis Dix, John Marshall, Robert Terrel, Robert Muller and Joseph Davis. Jack Bunnell will be the auctioneer.

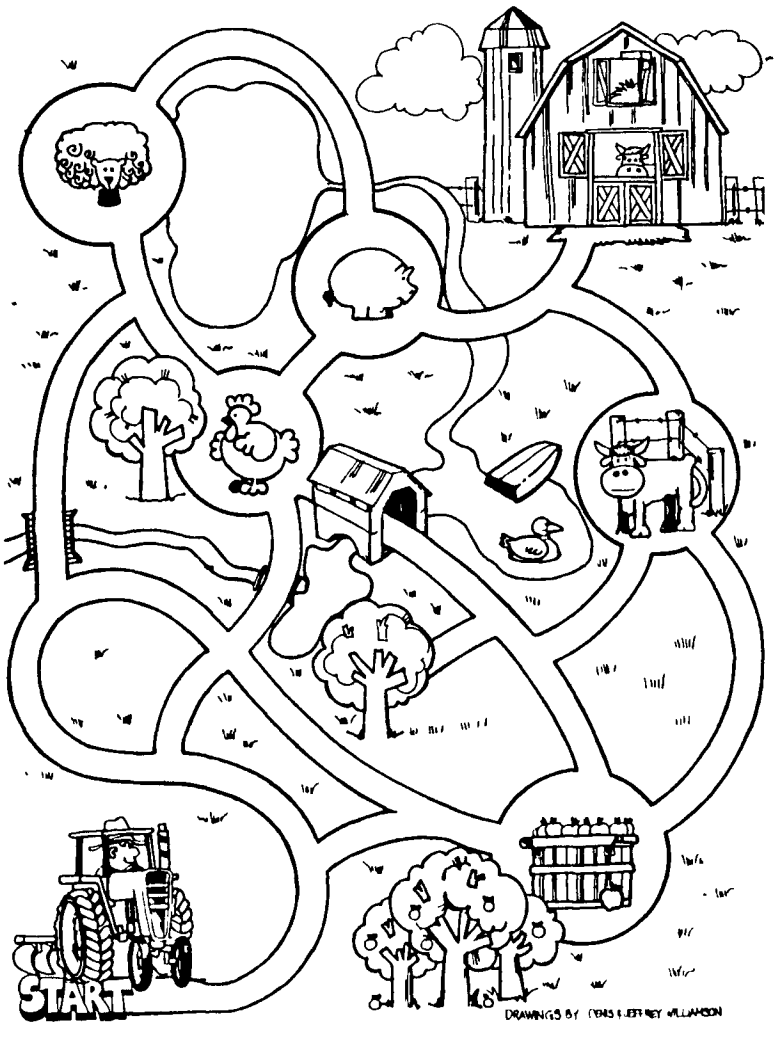
Tobi Hill Farm Coloring Page

I know children love to color and when I saw these delightful pictures in a coloring book published by Tobi Hill Farms in Honey Brook, I asked if we could share them with you. The drawings are by Denis and Jeffrey Williamson.

If you want to cut out the pictures and stand them up, first glue construction paper or cardboard on the back of the page. That will make it heavier so the pictures will not topple.

If you would like the whole coloring book, which is much larger, you must visit the farm at Dampman Road, R.D.4, Box 65, Honey Brook.



Johnny Tractor And His Pals

"Johnny Tractor and His Pals," a children's storybook published 30 years ago by Deere & Company, is being published again in a deluxe edition. When it was originally published in 1958, the book was so popular that John Deere farm equipment dealers distributed more than 300,000 copies.

Today, one of the original 7x8-inch books is considered a collector's prize. Depending on its condition, an original book frequently sells at flea markets for $25 to $50.

"We decided to publish "Johnny Tractor" again because of letters received from customers," commented Ralph Hughes, Deere's director of advertising. "Even after 30 years, we received a dozen letters last year. The letters used to come from mothers and fathers who read the book as children. Now the letters are from grandparents."

The new deluxe edition is 8½ x11 inches in size. "We didn't want to destroy the collectors' market, so we changed the size and printed the new book on higher quality paper and with a nicer cover," said Hughes. "Otherwise it's the same delightful story reproduced from the original artwork."

"Johnny Tractor and His Pals" is available from John Deere dealers throughout the United States. Suggested retail price is $2.95.

Family Reunions

On a recent tour of historical Tulpehocken Manor in Lebanon County I was reminded of the importance of family reunions. Tulpehocken Manor has been the site of many happy family reunions all year round. And as I travel this summer I've seen many signs at community centers, fire halls and churchs, welcome the joining of family members.

There's nothing like getting the whole clan together to rekindle family ties. It's a special opportunity to catch up on everyone's life, marvel at the children, share fond memories and simply enjoy your family's company. For people intrigued by their origins and the mystery of the past, there's also no better reason than a reunion to explore your family history. Doing so is likely to stir warm feelings. And, in the end, the ties that bind you together may very well be strengthened.

I must admit at this point that family reunions were not always my favorite Saturday or Sunday past time as a child. It is only more recently, as I age, that I have come to appreciate the family reunion idea. I do recall large family reunions where we ate and then the adults wanted to sit around and talk. "Us kids" were supposed to automatically socialize with that cousin twice removed that we haven't seen since last reunion. Eventually we would warm up, renew acquaintances and be having a great time by the hour we needed to leave for home.

A recent publication entitled "Gathering Generations" by Better Homes and Gardens Family Network has provoked my thinking on making those family reunions more enjoyable for the young and old. Here are some of the highlights of ways to enjoy yourself.

Because it is only natural for people to feel a bit reserved when they first arrive, consider ways to create some camaraderie. How about a family treasure hunt to get people relaxed. Send attendees off to find the oldest family member, the parents of triplets, the relative who traveled the farthest or the newest baby. If you're not into writing games, how about a game of tug-of-war or a sack race to loosen people up. Possibly required table-hopping after each course would also give everyone a chance to say hello.

By all means, schedule some activities for your reunion. That's part of what makes a reunion such fun. Think about activities that would appeal to everyone and include a variety of options. Here are a few suggestions.

Take into account that both kids and parents will appreciate a chance to socialize on their own. Teens, for example, could engage in a break-dance competition or volleyball tournament. Tots could have a coloring contest.

Encourage people to interview each other and preserve what they're saying on audio or video tape. Also, no family reunion would be complete without a family portrait to mark the occasion. To be sure that everyone is in the picture, ask a friend or neighbor or even a professional photographer to do the snapping. Or if someone has a video camera, consider taping the day's activities. Everyone can get together in the evening to watch the "instant replay".

Another exciting idea is a family treasure trove. Set aside one table in a central location and ask family members to bring an heirloom or memorabilia object. Or try a bulletin board display of baby pictures of as many family members as possible. Ask people to guess who is who. Also, you might want to ask the family historian to talk about the recent changes in the family tree.

Remember too as the festivities draw to a close that you should take advantage of everyone's enthusiasm and warm feelings to set the wheels in motion for the next reunion. You might want to institute a family newsletter to keep everyone up-to-date.

It does take some planning to make the reunion enjoyable for all ages. But it is the enjoyment that will keep your family coming back year after year. The special qualities that make your family unique will also make your reunion a one-of-a-kind celebration.

Convenience Foods Are Not All Costly

If the demands on your time and budget are increasing, it is important that you get the most for your food dollar and for the time you spend in your kitchen. Although money and time usually seem to work against each other, there are ways to save both and still serve nutritious meals to your family.

Perhaps you need to re-evaluate your meal patterns, especially if your living styles have changed in recent years. For example:

If breakfast is usually a hurried meal of cold cereal and juice, why not serve a hot breakfast-style meal for dinner once in a while. French toast or waffles, or an omelet and bacon can be a treat for the family and the busy cook.

Keep meals simple and limit them to 2 or 3 courses. Serve a salad or soup course first to quiet hunger pains while the rest of the meal finishes cooking.

Usually we pay for the "convenience" of convenience foods but you do not have to limit yourself to steaks or fancy prepared frozen dishes with rich sauces. Some convenience foods actually cost the same or less than making the same food from scratch. They still offer a shortcut in meal preparation. For example:

Use a frozen pizza. Add your own toppings like extra cheese, meat or peppers.

Start with a package of macaroni and cheese. Add tuna or meat to transform it into a hearty casserole.

Add meat, vegetables, pasta or rice to dry or condensed soup for a casserole. Bake a cake from a mix and vary it with nuts or coconut topping. For a special dessert, spread half of a cake mix in a small pan. Pour a fruit pie filling over the mix. Dot with butter or margarine. Bake and serve hot. The result is a cobbler any cook would be proud to serve.

Use frozen bread dough. Thaw and roll out into a rectangle. Sprinkle it with grated Swiss or cheddar cheese, or honey, granola and raisins. Roll up jelly roll fashion and let rise in a bread pan until the dough doubles in size, then bake at 350 degrees F. for 25 to 30 minutes.

As a busy homemaker with or without a paying job you will be miles ahead if you can put together your own convenience foods whether at odd moments in the day or on a weekend afternoon. You will appreciate them later in the week when you arrive home tired and hungry just before the dinner hour.

Make and freeze ahead casseroles such as manicotti or quiche. Use containers that can go directly from the freezer to the oven.

Make your own salad dressings. Some recipes such as mayonnaise only require a few ingredients and a buzz in the blender. Others can be quickly cooked or you can resort to the dry salad mixes that can be mixed in less than a minute with vinegar, water and oil. In fact, vinegar, oil, salt, pepper and dash of paprika or dry mustard makes an easy, excellent salad dressing. Homemade dressings can be fast, tasty and less expensive than buying the ready-made dressings in the store.

Shape your own hamburger patties before freezing so you can thaw and cook a few at a time.

Shred cheese and store in recipe-sized portions. Chill or freeze until time to use.

With thought and creativity you can find other ways to streamline your food preparation without raising the cost of your food bill. It pays big dividends.

Ten Named To Honors Group At State Fashion Revue

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Ten girls from around the state were named to the 10-member Honors Group at the State 4-H Fashion Revue, held July 26 at Penn State.

The annual Fashion Revue, at which regional finalists model outfits constructed as part of a 4-H project, was held at Eisenhower Auditorium on the University Park Campus. Fifty contestants participated in the event held in conjunction with Penn State 4-H Week.

The judges based their selection on quality of garment construction, degree of construction difficulty, fit and the contestant's modeling style.

The honors group members are now eligible to complete a form on their 4-H activities for final judging. The combined scores from the Fashion Revue judging and the report judging will determine the State Fashion Revue winner for 1988. The state winner will receive an expenses-paid trip to Chicago to attend National 4-H Congress, December 3 to 8, where she will compete in the national Fashion Revue.

The honors group included the following:

Beth Ann Hennen

Amber Serotkin

Monica Shenk

Amy Fyock

Jennifer Stairs

Marian Matson

Beth Ann Hennen, of Georgetown is a 4-H member for nine years. She modeled a two-piece rayon dress. Her blouse had a Chelsea lace collar and buttoned down front. The skirt, extending to mid-calf, flaired slightly with pleats in front and back. Fully lined, both pieces were finished with Hong-Kong and French seams.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hennen, Beth Ann will be a senior at South Side High School in the fall.

Joan Gilliland, of Troy, is a 4-H member for nine years. She modeled a gown of blue taffeta and lace. Reminiscent of the Old South, the gown featured a fitted bodice, scoop neckline, gathered overskirt and an underskirt complete with two lace ruffles. Completing the outfit was a 1928 gold and pearl teardrop necklace with matching earrings.

Marian Matson, of Erie, is a 4-H member for six years. She modeled a three-piece outfit of poplin. Done in the colors of peach and white, the outfit consisted of a blouse, pants and a jacket. The pants had an elastic waist, tapered legs and side patch pockets. In a peach and white striped fabric, the blouse featured a patch pocket, back yoke and drop shirttail. Completing the ensemble was a button front jacket with shirt collar, side seam pockets and a stripe across the front, back and sleeves.

Amber Serotkin, of Three Springs, is a 4-H member for nine years. She modeled an outfit complete with a Landau wool coat. The tan skirt-length coat featured roomy patch pockets and a center back pleat. Under the coat she wore a tweed alpaca wool jacket accented with braid trim, a black challis skirt of wool viscose and a rose colored blouse.

Amber is the daughter of Robert and Mary Serotkin. She will be a junior at Southern Huntingdon County High School in the fall.

Amy Fyock, of Lititz is a 4-H member for six years. She modeled a two-piece dress of peach fine wale corduroy. Highlighting the outfit was a handmade belt. Using cords, beads, buttons and ribbons in shades of peach, blue and taupe Amy created a unique accessory for her outfit.

The daughter of Dave and Mary Alice Fyock, Amy will be a sophomore at Warwick High School in the fall.

Monica Shenk, of Lititz, is a 4-H member for seven years. She modeled an outfit consisting of a skirt, blouse and sweater. Made of black Pendleton the straight, semi-fitted skirt had seven hemline pleats in the back. The sweater, a loose fitting pullover contructed of

Tobi Hill Farm Finds Key To Profit And Satisfaction

BY LOU ANN GOOD

HONEY BROOK (Chester) — What are Philadelphia suburbanites doing in farming?

Making a profit by diversification—that's what.

Twenty years ago when Betty and Bob Kirk lived in Wayne, a suburb of Philadelphia, they knew nothing about farming. Bob worked in construction, but they had some farmer friends whose enthusiasm for the rural lifestyle was contagious.

Consequently, the Kirks purchased a hobby farm and began their agricultural endeavors by raising two steers. Soon family and friends wanted to purchase beef for eating.

To fill the orders, the Kirks increased their stock and purchased a full-fledged farming operation, a 68-acre farm, on the outskirts of Honey Brook. Bob, putting his contruction skills to use, remodeled the stone farmhouse built in the late 1700s.

Although Bob enjoyed raising cattle, he was not exactly thrilled to sell his steers to a middleman who made a profit. Bob figured the family could get more profits and have more fun if they butchered their own stock and sold directly to the consumers.

The Kirks turned the basement of their huge house into a butcher shop and store. Over the years, they added more products and more customers, too. Today Tobi Hill Farm has a mailing list of 18,000 customers.

Betty and Bob are most adamant that they could not have achieved this success if it had not been for their sons. Tom and Bill were only three and seven years-old when their parents purchased Tobi Hill Farm (the name was derived from the abbreviated combination of Tom and Bill). Today, Tom is 27-years-old and Bill 23.

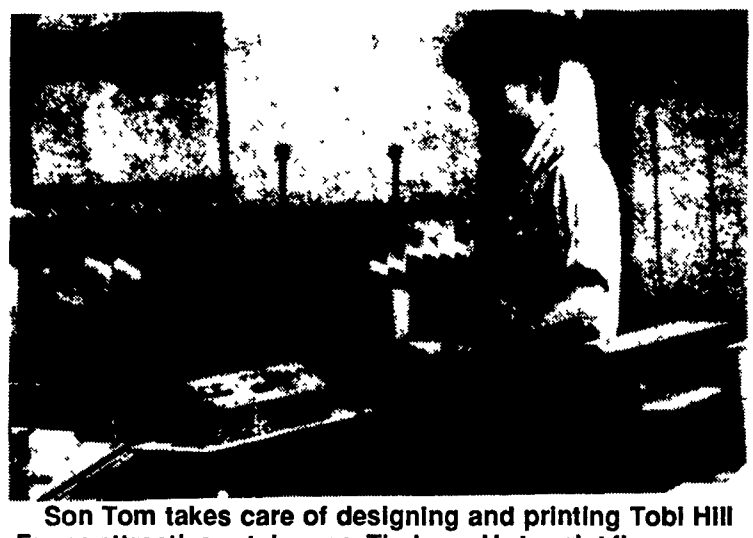
Bill is responsible for planting and harvesting the corn and hay and tending the stock. He also spends eight-hour days cutting meat in the shop. His father is in charge of meat cutting, the general business, and delivering orders of $300 or more in the Lancaster, Reading and Wilmington areas. Betty takes care of ordering supplies, inventory, and customer orders.

The attractive catalogues, listing the products, recipes and hints from Tobi Hill Farm, are printed by Tom. Printing press, photo composition machines and typesetting machines are all housed in the farmhouse. "We do all our own advertisement; we don't advertise in the paper because we feel our ads get lost among so many," Bob explained.

Tom said, "It's fun to take a piece of paper, design it, print it, and see how it comes out and to see the business it brings through the door." On the side, Tom also prints the Chester County PFA newsletter, labels, recipe cards, and is tentatively planning a cookbook compiled from his mother's recipes.

"You'd be surprised how many people don't know their cuts or meat and have no idea how to cook it," Betty said. Her cookbook would steer the cook through the basics and onto more detailed cooking.

Bob and Betty Kirk stand at the store entrance to their Tobi Hill Farm, the home of quality meats. Neither Kirks have a farming background, but they started as hobby farmers and today have a thriving cattle business.



Son Tom takes care of designing and printing Tobi Hill Farms attractive catalogues. Their goal is to print five a year but so far they usually print four. Catalogues can be ordered by contacting the farm at Dampman Road, R.D.4, Box 65, Honey Brook, PA 19344 or call 215 269-2828.

Children love to visit the Tobi Hill Farm store with their parents. Notice the giant marble roller in the background and a box of toys that occupies little ones while their parents shop. They also hand out Tobi Hill coloring books, which pictures the Kirks and their farming and store operation. Pictured is Emily Louise, daughter of Tom and Patricia Kirk.

"All beef is not created equal—it must be raised to our standards!" claims Bob Kirk. "Our steers are hand picked by an experienced cattle buyer. Son Bill feeds them home grown corn and hay while they graze in open pastures. The fattening steers are fed a ration of ground ear corn and all-natural supplements. We NEVER add feed additives or hormones to their diets."

Determining growth

"Our customers are our guideline for business changes," Betty said. "We listen to them, find out what they want, and give it to them."

They discovered that many prefer combination orders of beef, pork, poultry and seafood rather than all beef or pork. Besides the usual beef and pork roast, customers have the option of buying roasts in barbecued sauce, and other oven-ready meats such as stuffed chicken breasts, handmade meat balls and hamloafs. Their inventory includes seasonings, soups, cakes, pies, jellies and salad dressings. Most of the jellies and salad dressings have no salt and are low in sugar.

Gift packages such as the candlelight dinner for two includes a pair of candles, two cloth napkins, 12 ready-to-eat shrimp, croissants, preserves, two thick, juicy filet steaks, cherry topped cheesecakes or a small platter of gourmet cookies.

The store maintains a down-home comfortable atmosphere by retaining the home's original, huge, wooden beams that display a toy collection of John Deere tractors. Tucked in the nooks and crannies of the basement are crafts that customers bring in to sell on consignment.

But the main drawing card for the farm is still their additive-free top quality meat. The Kirks raise between 200 and 300 steers yearly. Otherwise they purchase meat from southeastern Pennsylvania farmers. "The meat must be preservative free and of high quality.

"We freeze everything as soon as it is made," Betty said. "That way it's fresher and more flavorable. If meat is cooked frozen instead of thawed, it is juicier and tastier." To please the walk-in customers, the Kirks will sell fresh meat, but they only transport frozen meats.

The Kirks boast that their aged beef does not shrink. Bob pulled some hamburger patties from the freezer and said, "Our only customer complaint is that the patties stick out of the buns—they're that large."

Although they provide bulk amounts to a substantial part of their clientele, the Kirks are finding more and more customers want ready-to-serve dishes. "After working eight or nine hours, a wife doesn't want to come home and slave over preparing dinner," Bob said.

In response to this lifestyle, Betty has developed many ready-to-serve dishes. One is their exclusive party roast, made from the boneless center of a pork loin that has been trimmed and tied in a circle; the stuffing encircles the outside of the meat and fills the center. Customers have a choice of bread stuffing, sauerkraut or seasoned rice.

The Kirks offer installment payments on large orders. Most people are reliable, they find, "only a small percentage cause problems."

Reasons for success

Bob credits three things for contributing to their success:

- Quality.
- Service
- Taking care of their own customers.

Said Bob, "If you take care of the ones you have, they won't go elsewhere." And their satisfied customers tell others.

The Kirks believe marketing is the key to financial profits. Bob said, "Small businesses often lack direction. They don't understand the financial end and don't know where to spend money. To survive farming, you must do something to use assets to the biggest advantage."

Betty added, "Many farmers are scared of the public and therefore do not try to market their products directly. We are familiar with the lifestyle of the public since neither of us were raised on a farm. We know what the public wants and how they live, so we know what to offer them."

Bob said, "Farmers are usually afraid to charge what their product is worth. To realize a profit, they must get past that." He explained, "We don't compare our prices with other supermarkets. We figure our costs and set a fair price."

Most importantly, the Kirks feel, "We strive to keep consistent high quality and go out of the way to please our customers. We find they're willing to pay for quality."

All family members basically put in 12 hour days although they are flexible if someone wants some time off.

Betty said, "Each family member is responsible for their own section. We're all happiest when we are busy. We have so many different things to do, we don't get bored."

The Kirks enjoy "having something to pass on to their children." Betty said, "If the children left, the thrill of this work would leave with them."

"The biggest pat on the back we get," Bob said, "is when things happen such as this: One of our customers who had moved to Michigan several years ago moved back in the area last week. Within a few days, he called and placed an order because he said, 'I never forgot how good your meat tastes.'"

It's customer satisfaction that makes the work worthwhile the Kirks insist. "We enjoy seeing the second generation of customers coming in. Their parents are satisfied. We want to keep the next generation pleased with top quality foods." For that reason, Tobi Hill Farm keeps on combining farming and retailing.

Judy Rhoads, of Berlin, is a 4-H member for 10 years. She modeled an Evan-Picone designer suit constructed of fuchsia wool crepe. The semi-fitted, double-breasted jacket featured black trim and buttons, a shawl collar and two-piece sleeves. Complementing the jacket, the skirt was gently flared and fell to a mid-calf length.

The daughter of Harry E. and Virginia Rhoads, Judy will be a senior at Berlin Brothersvalley High School in the fall.

Rebecca Ott, of New Alexandria, is a 4-H member for nine years. She modeled a wool suit and jaquard blouse. The long navy double-brested jacket, ivory blouse and straight ivory skirt with an attached flowing flounce can be worn together or mixed with other garments for versatility.

The daughter of Robert and Sara Ott, Rebecca will be a senior at Greensburg Salem Senior High School in the fall.

Jennifer Stairs, of Acme, is a 4-H member for eight years. She modeled a three piece outfit of royal blue and fuchsia. A long jacket and semi-fitted skirt made of royal blue wool crepe were highlighted by a fuchsia blouse which buttoned down the back. A scarf attached to the jacket completed the outfit.

Heavyweight Barrow Judged Lebanon's Grand Champion

BY LISA RISSER

LEBANON — Beating out nearly 100 hogs, the 243-pound Hampshire-York cross barrow shown by Kelly Bachman of Annville was declared grand champion at the Lebanon Fair's Swine Show on Monday. Judge Henry Holloway described the barrow as extra long sided yet heavily muscled.

Bachman, 17, has been showing hogs for nine years, the same amount of time that she's been a 4-H'er. She's had two grand champion hogs before this win, and at last year's Lebanon Fair, she showed the grand champion steer.

The barrow and the reserve grand champion, a gilt, were bred by Arnold Hog Farm in Lebanon and Womelsdorf.

Nine-year-old Justin Lehman of Palmyra had his first reserve grand champion this year with a 235-pound Duroc-York-Hampshire cross. Justin is a second-year 4-H'er and has been showing hogs for two years.

The lightweight championship title went to Kara Arnold, who also won the carcass class. Matt Bucher was named the reserve lightweight champion with his 213-pound hog. On top in the mediumweight division was 13-year-old Darren Grumbine, who showed a 227-pound swine. The reserve mediumweight champion was exhibited by Jay Kleinfelter. Winning the light heavyweight championship was Lehman with his gilt, while Greg Bomgardner took reserve light heavyweight champion with the second-place hog out of Lehman's weight class. Bachman's grand champion was the heavyweight champion, and reserve heavyweight championship honors went to Melanie Bushong's 238-pound hog.

Five youths competed in the FFA division of the showmanship/fitting competition. Winning this contest was Jay Kleinfelter, who did a good job watching the judge and controlling his hog.

Winning the 4-H competitions were, Daryl Grumbine, 16-19 year class; Jay Kleinfelter, 14-15 year class; Amy Harnish, 12-13 year class; Greg Bomgardner, 10-11 year class; and Katie Lefever, 8-9 year class. The grand champion showman and fitter was 16-year-old Daryl Grumbine of Lebanon, who remained unruffled while handling his hog and others in the competition, maintained good watch on the judge, and controlled his ' skillfully.

In Lebanon County Pork Carcass Show, Kara Arnold's 256-pound hog was judged champion. In the reserve spot was the 263-pound hog owned by Todd Balsbaugh.

Grumbine, States Capture Lebanon Fair Sheep Honors

BY PAT PURGELL

LEBANON — Good purchases made by Darren Grumbine paid off in a winning way at the Lebanon County Fair sheep competition. Darren and brother Daryl took championships in the Dorset ram and ewe classes. The Grumbine's Dorset ram was chosen by show judge, Dick Kuzemchak, as the 1988 Lebanon County Fair Supreme Champion.

Kuzemchak said that although the winning ram was the only entry in its class, the Grumbine's entry could stand a lot of competition and predicted the animal would do well throughout the season. According to Daryl, Darren purchased the champion Dorset ram from Westhaven Farm in Ohio and the champion Dorset ewe from Brandt Farm also in Ohio.

Heather Emrich earned the champion FFA ewe honors with her Dorset ewe under one-year-old. Heather also won the reserve champion title. Earning champion ewe titles in their breed were: Benjamin Bow, Corriedale; Darren Grumbine, Hampshire; Daryl Grumbine, Shropshire; Amy Smith, Suffolk and Wendy Atkins, Polypay.

It was Jason States' class 4 market lamb, weighing between 99-103 lbs. which took the market lamb champion title. Darren Grumbine's class 7 lamb, weighing 114-119 lbs. which took the reserve champion title.

Daryl Grumbine was selected as the grand champion showman in the 4-H sheep division. Daryl took first in the 16-years and older age group. Heather Emrich took second in that age group and earned the reserve champion title in the 4-H showmanship competition. Heather also took the champion showman in the FFA competion and Krista took the reserve spot.

Lamb Carcass

Jamie Irwin scored highest in the lamb carcass competition and earned the championship. Irwin earned best of show in the categories of rib eye area; adj. fat thickness and adj. carcass yield. Benjamin Bow took the reserve spot.

ALUMINUM GOOSENECK TRAILERS

20' Gooseneck Trailer

A versatile, lightweight, Eby aluminum stock trailer is built to provide years of maintenance free service. An Eby trailer is custom built to fit your individual hauling needs - No mass production! We use only quality components and strong alloy aluminum to manufacture what may be the last trailer you'll ever buy.

• LIGHTWEIGHT - Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.

• MAINTENANCE- Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.

• DURABILITY - Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a livestock trailer.

Rough and Tumble is a museum dedicated to preserving and demonstrating machinery formerly used on the farm or in early industry. This machinery once ran on many sources of power, and at the annual Threshermen's Reunion everything that will run is demonstrated. The Cavalcade of Power, a daily event at R & T's reunions, features over an hour-long parade of early gas-powered engines, antique automobiles and trucks, and a collection of steam-powered machinery seen no where else east of the Mississippi River.

This year that daily parade will also include at least a dozen case-made antique automobiles, 10 J.I. Case steam traction engines - some ½ scale models, and 50-75 tractors manufactured by the J.I. Case Company. The committee expects that a working example of every tractor ever made by Case will be at this reunion - with one exception. They have not yet located a model 10/18, a rare three-wheeler of which only a few known examples remain.

The J.I. Case Heritage Foundation, now 1,200 strong, will have a special tent area where visitors may chat with Helen Case Brigham, great-granddaughter of the agricultural pioneer. This 40th Anniversary Reunion at Rough and Tumble offers a unique opportunity for Case friends and enthusiasts in the eastern part of the U.S. to see this fine collection. One Case auto owner is presently scheduled to come from Texas, with his vehicles, just for this event.

Tempting Food Treats including a breakfast menu each day, homemade ice cream, inches-high ham and cheese sandwiches, funnel cakes and other goodies as well as full-course meals are available from members of the Auxiliary and members of the Kinzers Fire Company.

☐ Don't be misled by cheap seed treatments that only provide limited disease protection. The systemic activity of Vitavax® -200 protects your wheat and barley against disease losses from true loose smut, common bunt, scab seedling blight, seed rots and seedling diseases.

☐ Vitavax is patented as a growth stimulant. Under field stress conditions, like drought or cool, wet weather, Vitavax-200 treated plants normally emerge faster, develop more extensive root systems and larger crowns, and produce healthier stands that contribute to higher yields.

Vitavax gets to the heart of the problem. ♥ It gets to the heart of the seed.

Schuylkill County Fair

Grace Karrer, Schuylkill County Fair public relations director, announced today that the fair will officially open at 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday, August 9. "We're bigger and better: more exhibits, more entertainment, more fun and new fairgrounds."

The Scuylkill County Fair will run through Saturday, August 13. Opening ceremonies wil be held at 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday preceded by the crowning of the 1988 fair queen and princess at 6:00 p.m. and the auctioning off of the 1988 blue ribbon cakes at 6:45 p.m. Following opening ceremonies, entertainment will be provided by the Pale Rider Band. The fair opens at 3:00 p.m. Tuesday to the public and continues every day until 11:00 p.m. through Saturday.

"Admission is free," Karrer stated. "We want to keep the fair a family-oriented affair. There is a parking donation, but you can load up the whole family and your friends and neighbors. You can't beat that deal."

Lancaster County Fair

Activities, exhibits, and special events all highlight the Lancaster County 4-H Fair set for August 10 to 12. To be held at the Manheim Farm Show Complex daily from noon to 10 p.m., the Fair offers something for everyone who comes to be part of the festivities.

A 4-H project show, Showman of showman contest, volleyball tournament, omelet contest, archery shoot, air rifle and pistol contest, food stands, and craft stands are part of the attractions.

There also will be a steer show, a hog show and sale, and a Seeing Eye puppy training session. A sheep show will be held as well as a therapeutic riding exhibition.

A special feature of the fair will be the benefit auction to be held Friday, August 10, starting at 5:30 p.m. Included in the auction will be a variety of items including quilts and a special painting of the restored Manheim Railroad Station, which dates from 1881 and was recently restored by the Manheim Historical Society.

The painting, done by award winning Lancaster County artist Russell Allen, was donated to the auction by the artist. This is the only benefit auction of the year which is privileged to have one of Allen's works to be auctioned.

Other special features at the auction will include a collection and variety of Winross trucks donated by area businesses. These, too will be auctioned to the highest bidder.

Another special feature of the fair will be an exclusive visit of the pony Misty II of Chincoteague, the grand-daughter pony of the famous Misty of Chincoteague, of which a trio of children's books were written by author Marguerite Henry. Misty II, so named because she looks the most like her famous grandmother, recently came to the Lancaster County area and her owners have consented to let the pony visit the fair.

Also included will be a signing for the deaf demonstration, and a chicken barbecue right on the fairgrounds. Throughout the fairgrounds there will be a wide variety of exhibits and projects, all made and entered by 4-H'ers from throughout the county.

Donations are still being accepted for the 4-H Auction. For more information about the 4-H Fair, contact the 4-H Extension Office at 394-6851.

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Maryland State Fair

The Eastern Regional Hampshire Show, boasting more than 400 entries will be held Sunday, September 4 at 3:00 p.m., in the Sheep Show Pavilion of the Maryland State Fair. This year's Show, which will run in conjunction with the 99th Annual Meeting of the American Hampshire Sheep Association, will offer over $5,000 in premiums with $50 going to class winners with 15 entries or more. In addition, the State Association will award trophies to individual class winners.

"For the past five years, the quality of animals at the Eastern Regional Hampshire Show has far surpassed the quality of other shows," said sheep superintendent Tom Morris, "Our Show is one of the top three shows in the nation, excluding the National Show."

The Maryland State Fair not only attracts entries for the Hampshire Show it also attracts other breed representatives. According to Dr. Scott Barao, University of Maryland livestock specialist, "Visitors at the Fair will have the opportunity to check out four other breeds of high quality sheep." The corner auger on this grain cart provides full visibility during unloading.

Corner Auger Permits Visibility

KALIDA, OH — Brent® grain carts from Unverferth Manufacturing Co. Inc., are now equipped with a corner-mounted direct-drive discharge auger.

The corner auger provides full visibility during unloading to reduce the chances of damaging auger, cart and trailers. The auger's position also makes it easier to top off a load or unload on the go. For safe transport and easy storage, the auger folds completely within the frame of the cart.

The auger intake is located completely below the floor line of the cart. As a result, the auger always runs full of grain which reduces unloading time. The submerged intake also assures complete clean-out. For night-time unloading the auger is equipped with a spotlight.

Brent® grain carts from Unverferth also feature 38-inch hydraulic flow control, visible flow-control position indicator, fold-up sideboards, four charged hydraulic hoses and ISO couplers. The carts have capacities ranging from 355 to 930 bushels.

For more inforamtion contact Unverferth Manufacturing Co. Inc., P.O. Box 357, Kalida, OH 45853; 800/322-6301.

Are You Considering Drought Stressed Corn For Corn Silage?
IF SO—

These are two important points:

1. Drought stressed corn, if harvested and ensiled properly, can have as much or more value per pound than regular corn silage.
2. There is a right way to harvest and ensile drought stressed corn TO REDUCE THE DANGER OF NITRITE POISONING

If you have any questions please give us a call.

Martins Plan A Long Future In The Business They Love

BY PAT PURCELL

OXFORD (Chester) — It is not often that a dairy farmer's wife has a herd of cows all her own especially when the herd is larger than her husband's and she keeps them in the house. But that's the case with Kevin and Robin Martin on their Oxford dairy farm in Chester County.

Don't worry. Keeping them in the house is no problem. Robin's black and white collection is mostly china and ceramic. But both herds are a source of pride for Robin and Kevin and just another sign of the love they have for dairy farming.

Kevin and Robin, married thirteen years, have three children, Diana 2½ years old; Philip,6; and Kevin 9. The Martins have been selected as the 1988 Young Cooperators for the Mid-Atlantic Division of Dairymen Inc. and will be privileged to sit in on board of directors' meetings and to learn more about the business of cooperatives.

Although it is another demand on their busy schedule, the couple is looking forward to experiencing the cooperative firsthand and urge other couples to get more involved as members of the many cooperatives which serve dairy farmers. Kevin is no newcomer to cooperatives. His involvement with Agway and Atlantic Breeders Cooperative goes back many years. "Membership has its privileges" is a line from a frequently seen television commercial for a credit card company, but that line certainly rings true for cooperatives and Kevin reinforces the power dairy farmers have as cooperative members.

"Farmers would benefit by showing more interest in their cooperatives. Many people don't know how a coop works. They look at it as if it is a regular company," stated Kevin. "Members can make a difference and we can change policies if we don't like the way something is run."

"For example, we (Mid-Atlantic Dairymen, Inc.) have a program which was intiated through its members to increase production in the fall. The more we increase production during the period of Replacing the parlor when the Martins purchased the farm five years ago was top on their list.

Martins Plan

increased demand the bigger our bonus," explained Kevin.

Depending upon their level of production Mid-Atlantic Dairymen members can earn from 50 cents to $1 per hundredweight above current prices.

"Before this program they were paying up to $2/CWT to bring milk in from the Midwest and the members said 'Hey, we can produce more so pay us the money'," said Kevin. "The demand is up and they need more milk at that time and we want to sell for a higher price."

Kevin and Robin began their career in farming on Harold Martin's farm, Kevin's father. Thirteen years ago when the Martins were married, farming was just Kevin's job to Robin. She worked fulltime as a secretary and they lived in a house on the farm. But five years ago when they moved to their own farm, farming became a way of life for Robin and a challenge.

"I can't imagine Kevin doing anything else. I love our life here on the farm and I'm glad we can bring our children up on the farm," said Robin.

Both Kevin and Robin feel very fortunate to have their own 70-acre farm. Money was available from the Farmers Home Administration five years ago and they took advantage of it. Also, they were able to buy the farm without incurring an overwhelming debt load in order to buy farm equipment. Kevin's father's farm is nearby and the two farms operate as one and share all equipment when it comes to planting and harvesting crops. Kevin and Robin readily admit that without the loan of machinery from Kevin's father, the purchase of the farm would have been out of reach for them.

The Martins are thankful for other areas of good fortune in their lives. As the number of young farming couples appear to dwindle as farms disappear, those left in business tend to feel in the minority. So many times young farming couples may that the demands of dairying leave them at a disadvantage when it comes to leisure time to spend with their nonfarming friends or to vacation or just to to take a weekend off. But the Martins have found a treasure chest of farming friends at their church, Media Mennonite located just outside of Oxford. Kevin and Robin feel the fellowship they share with other farmers is very precious.

"Farmers tend to lean on each other more than other people do. When there is hardship everybody gets together and helps out. Farmers talk about the same things and we all need this," said Kevin.

Robin Martin and 2-year-old Diana show off their own herd of Holsteins which Kevin thinks out numbers his own herd.

Farmland preservation is another pressing issue in the Martins' area of Chester County where farms are consistently being swallowed up by development. Directly across from the Martin farm are building lots and new houses where there once were fields. And school taxes, according to Martin, have increased 10 percent each year for the past three years.

Although the signs of sweeping residential development are nearly at the Martins' doorstep, both Kevin and Robin agree that if it comes to the point where taxes and pressures from development force them from the farm, 'Lord willing' they will just continue farming somewhere else.

"When you have property right around us selling for such high prices, I can't take too many bad years," said Kevin. "I believe farmland preservation is a good idea, but the only way it is going to work is to make farming profitable. If I am going to keep my farm, there has got to be a profit. No one can continue farming without making a profit."

Kevin grows all his own forage and buys his corn because of the low corn prices of the past few years. But this year he's expecting to have to pay as much as 50 percent more for feed. The final figure may be more he says. But although

How To Remain Competitive In Milk Production

STATE COLLEGE (Centre) — Much is currently being said and written about competitiveness, comparative advantage, and regionalization of milk prices in the U.S. dairy industry. The dimensions of these discussions are mostly international, national, and regional in scope. But, dairy farmers must first survive among their competitors within a region or state, or competition by more distant dairy farmers becomes irrelevant. B.F. Stanton offers a list of eight suggestions for the consideration of Northeast dairy farmers in their efforts to remain competitive.

Stanton's Eight Suggestions

1. Have a large enough business so that the major economics of size and scale can be obtained. In the Northeast, most of this is currently possible when 100-150 cows are being milked in loose housing with a milking parlor.

2. Be located in an area where there are enough efficient producers so that costs of assembly are minimized, where farm services can be supported profitably, and where dairy production is recognized as important to the local economy and is respected by local government.

3. Produce or have in place a system to obtain a consistent supply of high-quality forages, both corn silage and early-cut hay or hay-crop silage. These are fundamental ingredients for low cost milk production in most dairy areas of the world.

4. Exercise cost control and study business performance using farm records on a regular basis. Comparative analysis, especially looking at current records relative to previous years' performance at the same period of the year, is essential in understanding change and recognizing potential problems before they become serious.

5. Give labor management priority and build some performance incentives into your system wherever possible. Labor management skills can be developed like any others; listening is an important component of that process.

6. Recognize the growing importance of society's interest in the environment in such issues as manure management and handling decisions, runoff problems, and the use of agricultural chemicals.

7. Take stock of all the resources you are working with: -the soils, buildings, milking facilities, cows, labor available, and your own management abilities and have a plan for their use and development. Communicate with someone outside the business on a regular basis about operations, finance, and other business matters.

8. Build on the strong points in your business and the resources you control. Recognize the weak points and contain them; work on the issues where you can see how to make progress.

Martins Plan

he is concerned, Kevin said he has plans to get around the threatening high prices. But he is worried about those farmers carrying a lot of debt who may not be able to weather a bad year.

"We always figure there are ways to pull through. But when it comes to the point when you can't make a profit you have to make a choice," said Kevin.

His feed ration consists of ear corn, soybean meal, whole roasted soybeans and a mineral supplement. If he can't get soybeans he will use urea, or distillers grain and brewers grain.

The effects of the drought and other various reasons for the ups and downs of the dairy industry, Kevin believes makes it more important than ever for farmers to join, support, and get involved with policy making of their local cooperatives. Farming working together in cooperatives can open up more marketing possibilities.

"We as farmers cannot sit back, produce milk and say here it is, pick it up and sell it," said Kevin. "That is not enough and we should not expect it."

The average cooperative member can't do everything, Kevin admits, but that is why directors are needed who will work for the farmers' benefit. Kevin pointed out that it is up to the independant to do a good job, but the profit goes into his pocket. And the independent answers only to himself. Whereas, farmers can actively participate and benefit from what the cooperative's management does. When members put a director on the board who does not work in the best interest of the farmer, that director can lose his job.

Kevin and Robin are looking forward to their year as Mid-Atlantic Dairymen's Young Cooperators and to their long and bright future doing what they love: dairying.

Livestock Ledger

Housing For Horses

For centuries, horses grazed in open air, with little or no protection from the weather. Today's horses, for the most part, are housed in barns and stables, and it is important that such buildings provide a comfortable and safe environment. The buildings used to stable horses today are of many different types. Some have been designed and built especially for the horse and its needs, while other structures have been remodeled or altered to accommodate horses; not always successfully. If you are planning to remodel or to build anew and would like some guidelines, contact your county extension office for a copy of the new Penn State publication "Housing For Horses", Circular #347.

Field Day For Cattlemen

The Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association and Penn State extension are sponsoring a Field Day for cattlemen including a barbecue lunch on Saturday, August 20, 1988 beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the Penn State Ag Arena at State College, PA.

Featured speaker will be Tom Cook, Director of Industry Relations of the National Cattleman's Association.

Also during the day will be tours of six area beef operations, a demonstration on ultrasonic measurement of live cattle, and seminars highlighting BRSV Vaccination Programs for Feeder Cattle, Stretching Feed Supplies, and Alternative Protein and Grain Sources. Feel free to attend early to view commercial exhibits.

Custom Cattle Feeding Opportunities

Due to earlier drought conditions, cattlemen from Pennsylvania's neighboring states have requested locations for custom cattle feeding within the Keystone State. A major advantage to these calf owners who are seeking custom feedlots, is that they may be able to take off half of their feed cost through a government program and pocket the added value to the calf. If you are an interested cattle feeder consider the necessary criteria for custom feeding cattle: 1) ability to calculate cost of gain, 2) history of good health management and 3) necessary equipment to weigh feed as it goes in the bunk. The custom cattle feeder basically sells his feed and labor. For more information contact Dr. John Comerford, Penn State extension Beef Specialist at 814-863-3670.

More Referendums

Pork producers will be able to vote on the check-off plan in a national referendum September 7 and 8 in their local county extension office. Details are now being finalized and will be published in the near future.

In regards to the Pennsylvania Sheep Referendum, revisions to the proposed sheep and lamb marketing program, in accordance with the provisions of the Agriculture Commodities Marketing Act of 1968 have been submitted to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Chief Counsel for final review.

The proposed program administered under the auspices of the Secretary of Agriculture will be controlled by a 10 member board of sheep producers appointed by the Secretary. The suggested check-off fee has been set at twenty-five cents ($.25) per head on all sheep and lambs produced and sold in Pennsylvania.

Mixed Species Grazing

Some recent highlights associated with pasture land research indicate an advantage to grazing cattle and sheep together. They are as follows:

- As much as 15% of the area in a pasture is manured and is growing grass 2-½ times faster than the unsoiled area, meaning up to 40% of the actual grass growth in a season will not be grazed by cattle.

- There was a 13% greater output per acre when cattle and sheep were mixed because the sheep will preferentially graze the soiled areas.

- As the percentage of sheep in the mix went from 25% to 75% there was a reduction in the advantage for the mixed plots. The converse with percentage of cattle was also true.

- Average daily gain was increased by 10% in plots grazed by both species. This was because soiled areas grazed by sheep would then be grazed by cattle again.

- They found mixed-species grazing was superior to dragging pastures because they lost 15% of the regrowth by dragging.

- The optimum combination appeared to be a ratio of 3 sheep to 1 steer to calculate grazing units.

Judging Champions

Congratulations to Indiana County's winning 4-H Senior Livestock Judging Team, lead by high Individual Jeremy Cattau at the recent Penn State 4-H Week. Lancaster County's Junior Team also placed first with Greg Harnish finishing as High Individual.

In Meats Judging Competition, Mike Craig and Rob Rush finished one-two in leading the Lancaster County Team to a State Championship. They now qualify to compete at the National Contest this fall in Kansas City along with teammates Anna Marie Frey and Carey Donches. Good Luck!

MAMMA And SUDIA Promotion Plans For 1989

BY KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

The plethora of milk promotion programs in effect in the Mid-Atlantic region will continue for at least another year as a result of plans approved at a recent meetings of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Agency and the Southeast United Dairy Industry Association.

Directors of both SUDIA and MAMMA, both of which receive promotion check-off funds from dairy farmers in the Federal Order 4 milk market, okayed management recommendations for a continuation of their current fluid milk advertising campaigns.

For the Atlanta-based SUDIA — which has about 13,000 contributing dairymen in more than a dozen Southeastern states, including about 800 Mid-Atlantic area farmers who contribute through their membership in Dairymen Inc., — that means new installments in the ongoing "Milk. America's Health Kick" campaign.

For MAMMA, which represents a vast majority of the 6,500 or so Order 4 producers, it means further twists on its familiar "Milk. It's Fitness You Can Drink" thtme.

Meeting in Baltimore July 18-19, MAMMA directors okayed a tentative budget of $4.6 million for 1989 that includes about $2.3 million for advertising, primarily for the Fitness campaign. The directors accepted the proposal of W. B. Doner and Company, a Baltimore-based advertising agency, to update that campaign with new television and radio commercials that will incorporate a new theme into the longstanding fitness approach.

The new commercials and other MAMMA advertising in 1989 will attempt to distinguish people who drink milk from those who don't in a hopefully humorous vein. The ads probably also will expand MAMMA's current focus on skim, lowfat and whole milk to include both chocolate and one-percent and two-percent fat milks explicitly.

However, for the first time in several years, the commercials probably will not feature any of the sports stars that have carried MAMMA's message to consumers. Baseball players Cal Ripken Jr., and Mike Schmidt, tennis ace Pam Shriver and Georgetown University basketball coach John Thompson will continue to appear in MAMMA ads through the remainder of 1988. Thompson, in particular, will be featured in a flight of advertising scheduled for telecasts of the upcoming Summer Olympics. After that, the agency would like to retain their participation in promoting milk on a more limited basis, according to Doner executive Ray Gaeng.

This potential change does not mean MAMMA is abandoning its use of sports activities as advertising vehicles. Tentative 1989 plans call for commercial sponsorship of college basketball games of Temple and Georgetown universities, as well as Philadelphia Phillies and Baltimore Orioles baseball games, among other activities.

But the move away from high-priced personalities will save MAMMA money during what is likely to be a leaner budget year for the promotion group. Anticipating lower milk production because of the drought, MAMMA's directors okayed a budget about 10 percent less than the 1988 one, although agency manager Dick Norton said the final cutback may be somewhat less than this.

Nevertheless, all of the programs that MAMMA funds — including the work of National Dairy Council affiliates in Philadelphia and Washington; dairy princess programs in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia; and foodservice and store merchandising promotions throughout the Mid-Atlantic area — face budget cutbacks in 1989, Norton said.

SUDIA activities

At their July 12-13 meeting in Baltimore, SUDIA directors ratified the decisions of their executive committee to proceed with the purchase of land for a new office building in Atlanta and to reorganize the structure of the affiliated Dairy Council units throughout the Southeast, including one that serves the Baltimore area.

SUDIA general manager Gill Morgan said the reorganization was needed because "costs are increasing faster than our income."

It's easy to lose track of SUDIA's activities in the Mid-Atlantic area in the shadow of more visible efforts by MAMMA and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. But they are substantial and they represent an investment at least as large as the one area Dairymen members make in SUDIA, according to Jesse Burall, a Monrovia, Md., farmer who serves as the agency's secretary.

The agency's overall 1988 budget is $10.16 million. No breakdown of these figures for the Middle Atlantic area was made available.

Bob Earle, a SUDIA vice president, said the agency sponsors fluid milk commercials on several Baltimore radio and television stations. It funds the Dairy Council work of a small Baltimore-area affiliate. It conducts an annual milk promotion with the Baltimore Blast indoor soccer team. It also extends regional food publicity and public relations programs into the central Maryland market.

However, a number of SUDIA programs -- such as baseball game promotions, work with foodservice operators and sales training seminars -- are not conducted locally because MAMMA sponsors similar programs, Earle said.

The radio and television commercials that SUDIA sponsors are developed by the United Dairy Industry Association as part of its ongstanding Health Kick campaign. The agency also will contribute about $1.7 million in 1989 to UDIA pool for airing these commercials on network television.

This strategy is different from the one employed by MAMMA, which develops its own commercials rather than use those of the Chicago-based UDIA. SUDIA directors say their strategy is more cost effective because the agency does not pay the substantial production costs of new commercials. MAMMA's directors, on the other hand, claim their approach has produced ads that are more in tune with East Coast audiences.

Grassland Management Demonstrated At Ag Progress Days

ROCK SPRINGS (Centre) — A grassland-management demonstration will be a new feature of the conservation programs at this year's Ag Progress Days. Tom Calvert, grassland management specialist with the USDA Soil Conservation Service, will conduct the demonstration each day at 1:30 p.m.

Topics such as rotational grazing, intensive or, short duration grazing, fencing, and warm season grasses will be covered in the one-hour program. The demonstration will be held at the grassland plots on the soil and water conservation tour route.

According to Calvert, livestock farmers have been finding increased value in pastures to improve profits. "Farmers who had good pasture management systems found that they paid real dividends during this year's drought," said Calvert. "Those farmers do not need to feed next winter's hay to their cattle this summer."

The bus to the grassland management demonstration will leave from the conservation tent at the west end of Eleventh Street each day at 1:30 p.m. Free tickets for the tour are available in the conservation tent anytime before the demonstration.

Ag Progress Days is August 16-18 at the Penn State Research Farms, Rock Springs.

USDA Extends Seventh CRP Signup

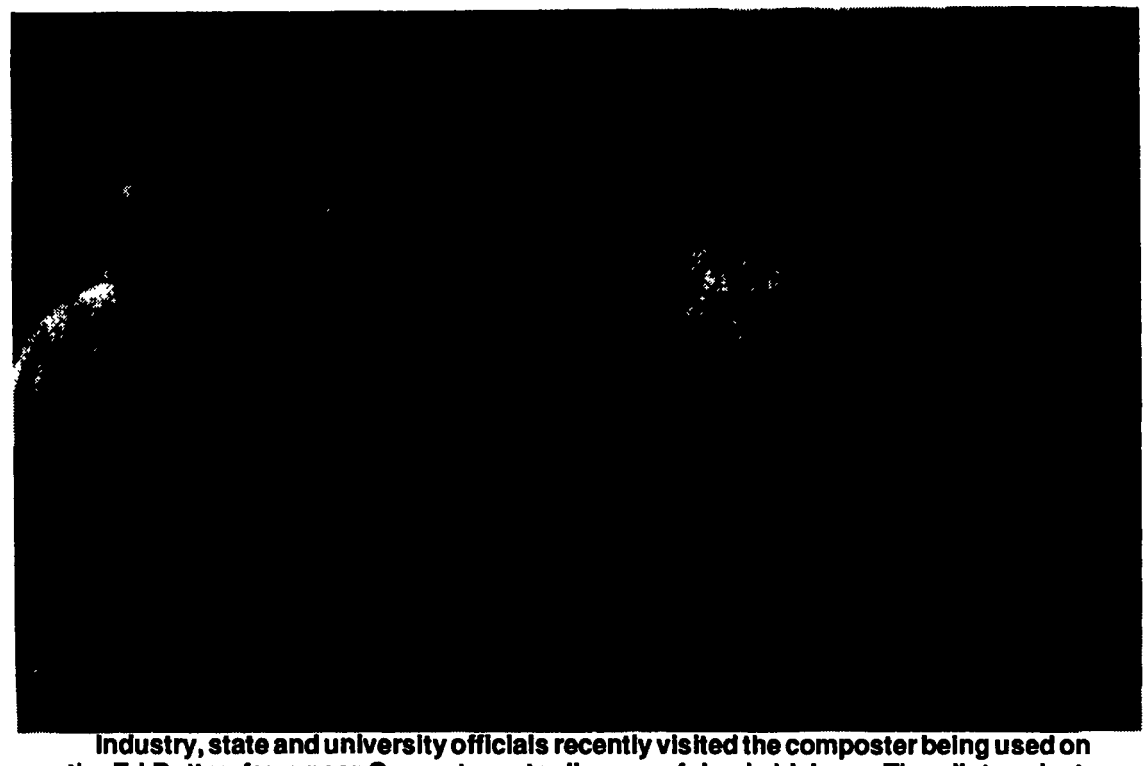
HARRISBURG — The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) extended the seventh Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) signup to give farmers more time to evaluate the effects of the drought. According to James Olson, USDA Soil Conservation Service, the seventh signup began July 18th. Original termination date was August 5 and has now been extended to August 31.

The first six signups resulted in 25.5 million acres of highly erodible land being enrolled. According to Olson, acres under CRP contract in Pennsylvania total 58,634. Placing this highly erodible land in a sod, shrub or tree cover is reducing average annual soil erosion in Pennsylvania by 1.1 million tons.

Under CRP, producers receive annual payments to keep highly erodible land out of production and planted to a protective cover. CRP participants also receive up to 50 percent of the cost of establishing vegetative cover.

Additional information is available from county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) or the Soil Conservation Service. Producers interested in enrolling their highly erodible tropland should contact their local ASCS office.

Delaware Taking Team Approach To Dead-Bird Disposal



Industry, state and university officials recently visited the composter being used on the Ed Dutton farm near Georgetown to dispose of dead chickens. The pilot project, partially funded by a $15,000 grant from the Sussex Conservation District and the Delaware Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, is part of a broader cooperative effort involving those agencies, the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. and Extension and Experiment Station personnel from the University of Delaware and the University of Maryland. The project is designed to solve the problem of dead bird disposal, a serious environmental concern on the Delmarva Peninsula. Delaware alone produces more than 200 million chickens annually, of which about 6 percent die before processing. Hosts of the VIP tour included, from the left, Cashar Evans, Sussex Conservation District; Ed Dutton; Bob Zimmerman, DNREC; Dennis Murphy, University of Maryland cooperative extension; and Dan Palmer, University of Delaware cooperative extension.

Ag Economist Discusses Livestock Outlook

BY H. LOUIS MOORE
Penn State

Weather is always a major factor in the outlook for livestock prices and supplies. Weather can be good to farmers or disappointing. Recent years have been fairly favorable from a weather standpoint except for pockets of dry weather. Farmers in these pockets have suffered but national yields continue to climb.

However, 1988 is shaping up to be different. It has already been termed the "worst drought in over 50 years." The area of drought is very widespread -- extending from northern Mexico to the Canadian provinces and from California to Pennsylvania. In the Plains States and the Corn Belt, the drought is already three months old and generally compared with the Dust Bowl of 1934. The Mississippi River is at near record lows and a high level of grounded barges has brought restrictions to barge traffic. Some areas of Indiana and Illinois have had less than an inch of rainfall since Easter. The next week is very crucial to the prospects for 1988 crops.

How will the livestock industry be impacted? Feed prices which were rising steadily before the drought have been skyrocketing. Corn prices have increased about 30 percent during the last month and soybeans are up 20 percent. While grain prices move up to new highs, the livestock industry is concerned that reduced feed supplies and high prices of feed will cause liquidation of cattle later in the summer and flood the markets with meat for a short period.

In light of this uncertainty, the markets are difficult to project. Even without drought, this will be the sixth straight year of record large red meat and poultry supplies. Reduced beef supplie sare being more than offset by increased volumes of pork and poultry. Beef supplies are not going to drop as much as earlier expected either. As recent as February, many thought beef supplies would drop five percent in 1988. It seems that feeder animals are appearing from nowhere and placements have been quite high. High slaughter prices have encouraged feedlot operators to keep their lots filled to capacity. The total volume of beef for 1988 is likely to be only three percent less than a year ago. Most of the drop will be in the July-December period. Fed cattle prices have probably already peaked for the year.

Large supplies of competing meats will limit beef price increases. Pork supplies in 1988 will exceed year ago levels by at least six percent. But prices should peak near $55 per hundredweight in July and August before dropping seasonally. Third quarter hog supplies should be about eight percent above year ago levels. Despite increased marketings and higher feed prices, hog returns remain positive. Hog returns have been favorable for over two years. Hog prices are expected to drop back to the mid $40 range by late September as prices will be preassured by increasing slaughter and large cold storage holdings.

The poultry industry continues to affect red meat prices. The production of eggs, broilers and turkeys increased two percent, nine percent and 19 percent respectively in 1987 and continued to increase through the first quarter of this year. Most indicators show that production of poultry items is slowing or decrreasing. Turkey and egg prices have been below breakeven most months in the last year; and broiler prices recovered in March and Arpil but have been below breakeven since last October. Returns for the poultry industry will be squeezed for the remainder of 1988, but production will be increased sufficiently to give increased competition to the red meat industry.

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK — The York County 4-H Fair Beef Show gave club members a mid-season look at how their animals stack up against competition while a few months remain for final growout and finishing.

Tile Drainage System Only As Good as Outlet

LEESPORT (Berks) — A subsurface, or tile, drainage system is only as good as its outlet. The investment of a little time, paint, and a steel post can help Berks County farmers protect substantial investments in subsurface drainage systems, according to Roy Shryock, conservation technician of the USDA, Soil Conservation Service.

The key to a good subsurface drainage system is a free flowing outlet. However with the passing years following the original installation, many outlets become "lost" or damaged, states Shryock. Heavy vegetative growth, siltation from flooding, livestock trampling, snow plow damage, etc. all combine to clog or obliviate the outlets location. The result is a drainage system that is less efficient or ceases to function altogether.

Evidence of a malfunctioning drainage system includes a stream of water that pops up in the field where there was none before or an area that remains wet long after the rest of the field has dried out.

To correct or prevent this problem, the outlet must be returned to a free flowing condition. But how do you find a "lost" outlet without spending a lot of time and effort digging in a hit-or-miss fashion?

"Simple" says Shryock, "just paint a standard 6-foot steel fence post fluorescent orange and place one post beside each drainage outlet on the farm."

Shryock points out the posts are readily available at reasonable cost; they serve as permanent markers to quickly locate outlets during suggested semi-annual maintenance checks; they alert farm and non-farm equipment operators to be more careful in the post areas; and they are particularly helpful in pointing out drainage outlets to new landowners or tenants when farms change hands or management.

A small investment in time and materials now can pay big dividends in preventing future drainage system damage and location problems.

"All subsurface drainage systems should be checked after every major storm for damage or at least semi-annually in the spring and fall; states the Conservation Technician. "Remember, your drainage systems will only serve you as well as you maintain your outlets. Why not check yours today."

Groundwater Fact Sheets Now Available

UNIVERSITY PARK, PA — Three fact sheets prepared by Joe Makuch, water quality specialist with Penn State's Department of Agricultural Engineering and the Chesapeake Bay Project, are now available. The Chesapeake Bay Project is a four-state effort to improve water quality in the bay and the Susquehanna River basin. Two sheets focus on causes and prevention of groundwater contamination; the third deals with managing manure, a potential source of water pollution when improperly handled.

Bay Fact Sheet #4, "Protecting Your Farm's Groundwater Quality," describes how nitrate, bacteria and pesticides can enter an underground water supply. It also presents ways to avoid water contamination associated with these substances.

"Sinkholes and Water Quality," Bay Fact Sheet #5, explains what a sinkhole is and illustrates what happens to garbage or chemicals dumped into a sinkhole. Guidelines for cleaning and maintaining existing sinkholes also are included in this fact sheet.

The answers to nine questions commonly associated with manure analysis are found in Technical Note #5, "Animal Waste Management." Questions answered include why, where, when and how often manure analysis should be performed, as well as how to use the analysis report. Knowing the chemical composition of your manure supply is vital in determining the amount of commercial fertilizer applied to cropland. Applying excess chemicals is expensive and the surplus may seep into the supply of groundwater.

These three fact sheets are being distributed by the Pennsylvania Chesapeake Bay Education Office, 225 Pine Street, Harrisburg. Further information concerning groundwater and agriculture in Pennsylvania can be obtained by contacting your county cooperative extension office and requesting extension circular 341.

Improve Cow Comfort With Sprinklers

STATE COLLEGE (Centre) — Farmers using water sprinklers at feed bunks to improve cow comfort in hot weather and thus maintain feed intake continue to report good results. This practice must be approached with care to be sure it does not result in wet sloppy udders. As long as the water is applied from the top in reasonable amounts it tends to drip off the flanks and not run down the udder. It is also important to keep excessive water from collecting where the cows are standing.

As the water evaporates from the cow's skin it takes heat thus cooling her off. In order for the water to evaporate and to get away from the animal the area must have good air exchange and air movement. Sprinkling cows in an enclosed barn or holding area with inadequate air exchange will result in a steam bath.

An easy way to apply water is to drill and tap a ¾ inch PVC or galvanized pipe every 4-5 feet to accept a spray nozzle holder. Use as small a fan jet type tip as you can find (tee jet 800067 was being used by several farmers I visited recently). Place the pipe and nozzles to direct water onto the center of the cow's backs. One farm suspended the nozzles about 8 feet above the floor and 32" back from the feed line. Another farm supports the nozzles above the feed line and aims them back at the cows. The water flow can be controlled manually with a globe valve hooked to the farm water supply. A solenoid valve, timer and thermostat provides automatic operation. Cycling the water on and off will conserve water and promote alternate wetting and drying. Wind will affect the operation of the system and can blow water onto feed or nearby free stalls.

Sprinkling free stall alleys is not recommended. Wet bedding during hot weather promotes unhealthy conditions. Also, you want to encourage cows to go to the feed bunk and eat. In California cows will come out into the hot sun to stand under sprinklers at feeding areas.

Remember these three important points if you plan to wet down cows for heat stress relief.

- Operate the system to minimize wet sloppy udders.
- Provide for good air flow over the cows to promote evaporation.
- Be sure to provide good air exchange to remove wet air from the sprinkler area.

DROUTH INFORMATION

Revisions have been made to two mimeos with detailed information on feeding alternatives. A copy of each is being sent to County Extension offices for duplication at the local level if desired. These mimeos are DSE-38-30-Feeding During Shortages of Home-Grown Feeds and DSE-88-31, Dairy Feeding Alternatives Following Adverse Weather. The latter contains a new guide on feeding of forages with various nitrate contents that is based largely on recent Dutch research.

Numerous short releases are being placed on PenPages under DROUTH MANAGEMENT INFORMATION. Send us the questions that occur and we will try to get them covered on the computer network. Means of keeping track of the feed and drouth situation at the county, regional and state levels also are being developed. Also check #0890297, Controlling Protein and Feed Costs For Dairy Cattle on PenPages.

SLIDE SET AVAILABLE

Factors Affecting the Protein Content of Milk: (99 slides - cassette tape with script - about 20 minutes)

This set of slides was prepared for county extension staff and allied industry to use at meetings of farmers, youth and dairy industry representatives. It covers the factors which affect protein test, emphasizing nutrition. The information will help some farmers raise the protein content of their milk, so they may possibly receive a premium. The script was written by Barnard, Adams, Heald, Heinrichs and Specht and was reviewed by dairy industry representatives. Contact Ag Information Services, Audio-Visual Division, Room 119, Ag Admin Bldg., PSU for the loan of this slide set.

PASTURE SUPPLEMENTATION

Too often dairymen either oversupplement or undersupplement cows on pasture. When young, actively growing pasture is available in good supply, milk cows often may perform well on a grain to milk ratio of 1:4 to 1:6. Use of hay or silage on good pasture generally should not exceed 12 to 14% crude protein. When pasture is over-mature of scant in supply, the feeding of stored forage may need to approach 70 to 100% of barn-season levels. In addition narrower grain to milk ratios of 1:2 1/2 to 1:3 may be needed. The grain mix may need protein and mineral levels that approach those on all stored forage, depending on the type of pasture and intakes of stored forage of various kinds. Use of well-balanced rations are just as important on pasture feeding as any other time of the year. Take a good look at your pastures for cows and young stock several times weekly. Move the animals to fresh pasture as needed and/or adjust your feeding to pasture conditions. Clip and chain harrow pastures as necessary to keep them in an actively-growing state and prevent wastage around manured spots. Make certain cows have shade and water available on pasture.

United States Dairy Sales Up In 1987

COMMERCIAL SALES

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Dairy product sales continued their upward climb during 1987. Commercial sales last year reached a record 135.3 billion pounds, up 1.4 percent from 1986 and 3.5 percent from 1985. Favorable price and income conditions may raise commercial use as much as 2 percent during 1988.

In terms of product usage, cheese continued to post sizable gains during 1987, with increases of almost 4 percent for American cheese and 5 percent for other cheese types. Use of Italian cheese was particularly strong, rising almost 10 percent from 1986.

Sales of beverage milk rose 0.4 percent from a year earlier as decreased whole milk sales were offset by increased sales of lowfat and skim milk items. In other categories, frozen desserts rose 2 percent while butter decreased 1.2 percent.

RETAIL PRICES

Retail dairy prices rose 1 percent during 1987, while food prices in general rose almost 3 percent. Prices probably will decline through midyear, followed by some seasonal rise during the second half. For all of 1988, dairy prices should average the same or slightly lower than in 1987.

MILK PRODUCTION

Milk production will rise 2 - 3 percent in 1988. Last year, milk production totaled 142.5 billion pounds, down less than one percent from 1986. Milk cows averaged just less than 10.3 million head, down one percent from a year earlier.

GOVERNMENT PURCHASES

In early 1988, Government purchases rose in response to a 3 percent rise in milk production and sluggish commercial use. During the second half of the year, markets are expected to tighten as gains in milk output slow and commercial use recovers.

IMPORTS/EXPORTS

Imports of dairy products during 1987 were equivalent to 2.5 billion pounds of milk, down almost 10 percent from 1986. Dairy product exports came to about 1.4 billion pounds, down less than 1 percent from 1986.

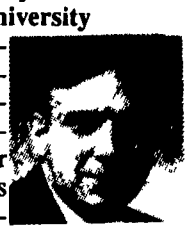
Managing for Success

BY JAMES G. BEIERLEIN
Associate Professor of Agricultural Economics, The Pennsylvania State University



It is more difficult to be successful in business today. This is especially true for those businesses involved in agriculture. Each day the highly changeable nature of the business environment places greater demands on each firm's management skills.

In the past 10 years we have all experienced a lifetime of changes in interest rates, energy prices, inflation rates and all the rest. In addition it has been necessary to cope with a host of new government regulations, tax laws, health and safety regulations and the coming of biotechnology. This year the nation may have to deal with the worst drought in years. Each is unique challenge that agricultural businesses must overcome in order to survive.

Being in farming means all the profits are yours to keep. Unfortunately, it also means that all the headaches belong to you. To survive in this tougher, more competitive situation farmers must be as skilled in business management as they are in production management. A bad business management decision can often more than wipe out an entire year's efforts in better production management.

A look at why businesses fail shows that it generally comes from uneven management skills. Some operators of failed farms were very skilled in production (e.g. dairy science, plant science, soil science, and so on) but lacked the necessary business management skills (e.g. financial management, budgeting, marketing and so on) needed to survive. Other failed operators were very skilled at business management but lacked strong production skills. In either case the result was business failure. To be a successful operator today requires someone who is a manager who can master both types of skills.

The Need For A Business Plan

The best way to ensure success is to plan for it. For a business to succeed it must have a goal to focus upon and a plan to help guide it. The goal of all managers, regardless of whether they are a producer or a feed supplier or a feed mill operator, should be the maximization of their business' long-run profits by profitably satisfying consumer needs. The satisfaction of consumer needs is what gives businesses the right to earn a profit.

The plan for a new firm is called a business plan. The business plan describes what the firm's overall approach to its business will be and how the firm will successfully gain a competitive edge in the market. The plan for an existing business is called a strategic plan.

The strategic plan describes the firm's overall approach to its business after it has identified and matched profitable business opportunities with the firm's existing assets.

The development of a business or strategic plan is crucial to the survival of firms in the food industry. It is especially critical today since the industry has shifted from a production-driven to a consumer need-driven marketing system. In the future, success in the food industry will require the same emphasis on developing business management skills that has been devoted to developing production management skills. The very act of developing the plan should help to make managers think more about what they are doing and why they are doing it.

The development of the business plan starts and ends with the satisfaction of consumer needs. An entrepreneur begins by looking for unmet consumer needs. One or more of these unmet needs is selected to be satisfied by the entrepreneur and becomes the firm's purpose. Customers will only buy this firm's product if it does something better, faster, cheaper or different than its competitors. The way in which the firm better fills this unmet need is what will given it a competitive edge in the market.

With its purpose and objective firmly in mind, the firm goes about developing its marketing plan. The results of the marketing plan help to set the boundaries of the other parts of the overall business plan such as the organizational plan, the production plan and so on. Each part of the business plan, and conflicts within the business plan, are always resolved in favor of giving the customers greater satisfaction.

Parts of A Business Plan

A good business plan contains at least five parts dealing with different aspects of the business. These plans include: 1. The marketing plan, which gives a complete evaluation of all the factors surrounding the customer needs the firm is going to fill; 2. The organizational plan, which describes how the firm will be structured (i.e. whether it will be a corporation or partnership or sole proprietorship), and what the firm's organizational structure will be (i.e. who reports to whom) so that it can best meet the needs of its customers; 3. The personnel plan, that describes how the right people with the right skills will be found to fill the positions within the business today and in the future; 4. The production plan, which describes how the product will be produced; and, 5. The financial plan, which describes how it is possible to profitably produce the product desired by consumers and still meet the firm's financial objectives (e.g. profits, return on investment, and so on). By taking a more organized view of what they do producers can be changed into managers. In this unsettled economic world in which we live managers rather than producers have the best changes of success.

CHICKEN FEED IS BIG MONEY

Don't Waste It!

For fifty years BIG DUTCHMAN CHAIN has been carrying feed to chickens. And for fifty years poultry equipment companies, including Big Dutchman, have tried to find a better way. There isn't one...only other ways.

If you are a poultryman who is tiring of "pie in the sky" claims of extra cage rows per house and truckloads of feed savings... then look to Big Dutchman, the leader in poultry cage equipment systems. Take a "hands on" look at time-tested fully proven cage systems, to find out why producers are putting over a million layers every month into new Big Dutchman installations. Then look to the really successful poultry farms world wide and you will find Big Dutchman Chain carrying the load.

Ecosyl™ Silage Inoculant

Silage Heating's Hard on Feed

Manufactured by C-I-L

★ Independent Research Proof: ECOSYL Pays
ECOSYL has been tested across Canada and around the world in independent farm-scale feeding trials. When compared to untreated silage, ECOSYL treated silage accounted for an average of:
- 8% more milk
- 5% more feed intake and
- 25% less protein breakdown

On the basis of these trials, silage treated with ECOSYL provided an average return of $7 for every $1 invested.

★ ECOSYL Has The Best Bugs
According to independent tests conducted at the University of Guelph, ECOSYL is the best silage inoculant available. Unlike other inoculants, ECOSYL contains a single strain of bacteria that works over the full silage pH range. Easy to mix and safe to use, ECOSYL is also effective over a wide range of moisture levels.

Recent rains across most of Pennsylvania have meant some recovery from the drought, but there were those who got too little, or it was too late, or both. The farmers I have visited with recently point out the early season corn is done for, with silage yields being 50% of normal or worse. Some have contended the late season corn will go ahead and mature and make some grain, but there are mixed expectations on yield.

The decision will soon be made on whether to harvest the corn as silage or grain. In some fields, it will simply not be economical to chop, haul, and ensile the material. Another alternative for severely damaged corn is to bale or graze the field.

A couple of precautions: the nitrate level is highest for the first week after a rain following a drought, and maintaining quality and proper moisture levels could be a problem in baled corn. It does, however, provide the opportunity to replant the field with some other kind of forage.

If baled soon, weather conditions should be sufficient to allow for proper drying of the corn. It must be treated like any other hay; that is, if baled too wet it will mold and lose feed value and palatability. A crop to consider in the replant is rye. This could provide some excellent early fall grazing, but herbicide carry-over could prevent or retard growth. Discuss this option with your chemical dealer and see what the carry-over situation is for you.

Drought-damaged corn is nearly as valuable for feed as normal silage if harvested correctly. My experience in Missouri under these conditions was that producers wanted to get in too much of a hurry to ensile it. If we continue to get dry weather, the corn field ready to harvest as silage will look more like a field ready for a combine than a chopper. Remember, the weight of the plant is almost entirely in the stalk when there is no ear, so very dry leaves will have little effect on the moisture content of the whole plant.

When feeding drought-damaged corn it is essential to know the nitrate levels. Field tests are only qualitative; that is, they tell only the presence of nitrate but not the amount. Animals which consume a normal daily intake of forage that is greater than 1% nitrate on a dry matter basis could die. Some keys to use of high-nitrate feeds are to introduce them to the diet over a 10-day period, mix them with other forages or grain to dilute the total nitrate consumption, check the water supply for nitrates to be sure it is not adding to the problem, and use balanced diets that provide sufficient energy to increase the tolerance to nitrates.

Signs of acute nitrate toxicity are usually sudden death, staggering gait, trembling, and excess salivation. A quickie cure for it is to drench the animal with a quart of household vinegar and get some high-energy feed into them as quickly as possible.

Pennsylvania Junior Wins Angus Showmanship Contest

ST. JOSEPH, MO — A Pennsylvania junior, Lori Cash, 17, from Centre Hall won the 22nd National Junior Angus Showmanship Contest. The event was held July 14 and 15 in conjunction with the 20th National Junior Angus Show at the Ozark Empire Fairgrounds in Springfield, Mo.

Lori competed against 57 other contestants from 32 states to win the prestigious title of "Top Showman" in the country. By winning this coveted title, she not only received $350 on behalf of the Hamilton James Memorial Fund, but Lori also was presented an engraved silver Revere bowl by the American Angus Auxiliary.

Placing second in the contest was Bruce Haas, 20, of LeRoy, Ill. He was presented a check for $250 and a silver Revere bowl.

An 18-year-old from Franklin, Tenn., David Brown, won third place honors along with $175 The fourth top showman, who also received $125 was J.J. Mayo, 17, of Mineral Wells, Texas. Finishing fifth and winning $100 was Edmund Hall, 19, Clover, S.C.

The cash prizes awarded to the top five finalists were on behalf of the Hamilton James Memorial Fund, established in memory of Ham James, an Angus auctioneer. Each of the five finalists also received a silver Revere bowl from the American Angus Auxiliary.

The three people who served as the showmanship judges were: Li Bowman, Mexico, Mo.; Brian McCulloh, Viroqua, Wis.; and Roland Starnes, Maylene, Ala.

Each contestant is judged upon skill in handling the animal, the ability to follow instructions, use of equipment, courtesy and sportsmanship and general appearances. Contestants do not show their own animals, rather they draw at random for the animals to show and switch heifers in the show ring at least once during the preliminary go-round and finals.

The top five finalists were part of the 15 finalists selected in four competitive go-rounds after the second day of judging at the 20th National Junior Angus Show. These 15 juniors came back the third day to compete before a large group of spectators in the show ring at the Ozark Empire Fairgrounds.

Lori Cash, center, of Centre Hall, was named the "top showman" at the 22nd National Junior Angus Showmanship Contest held July 14 and 15 at the Ozark Empire Fairgrounds in Springfield, Mo. Lori was presented a silver Revere bowl by Irene Smith, left, of Nicholasville, Ky., American Angus Auxiliary president, and a check for $350 for Mrs. Hamilton James of Newton, Ill., on behalf of the Hamilton James Memorial Fund. Tested Boar Sale Scheduled

STATE COLLEGE (Centre) — The PA Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center is making final preparations for Pennsylvania's 11th Performance Tested Boar Sale scheduled for Wednesday evening, August 17, 1988 at the Ag Arena on the Penn State University campus. The sale is scheduled to coincide with Penn State's Ag Progress Days.

The boars that are on test this year are posting the best weight gains that have ever been attained through this period of the test and this is in spite of the extremely hot, dry weather. Through June 28th, 79 boars had an average daily gain of 2.10 pounds per day with an average feed efficiency of 2.50 pounds of feed per pound of gain.

There are nine boars that have completed their test to 230 pounds with a gain of 2.50 pounds per day or better.

On test we have 40 Yorkshires, 12 Hampshires, 12 Durocs, and four each of Berkshires, Poland Chinas, Landraces and Spots.

Anyone needing a boar is encouraged to request additional information or come inspect this outstanding group of boars. Request information by contacting Glenn Eberly, Director of the Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, PA 16803; 814/238-2527.

Pennsylvania Junior Angus Group Meets

CENTRE HALL (Centre) — The Pennsylvania Junior Angus Association held a meeting on July 7, 1988 during the Pennsylvania Angus Breeders Show in Centre Hall, Pennsylvania. The meeting was called to order by president, Fritz Frey.

Anna Marie Frey, secretary-treasurer, read the minutes of the last meeting and gave the treasurer's report. They were approved as read.

The next topic of discussion was the 1989 Eastern Regional. Committees were formed to promote and gather ideas as part of the planning for the next Eastern Regional Junior Angus Show. Many adult advisors donated their suggestions, for example, on how to raise money and generate enthusiasm for the upcoming Eastern Regional.

Lori Cash was appointed show chairman so she can supervise the committees by making sure the groups get together and to give them ideas.

Why is this man so happy?

☐ He just bought a fishing boat with the money he saved on his new M-F 300 Series Tractor.
Could be You see, these 45 to 85 PTO horsepower* tractors aren't loaded down with unnecessary accessories that drive the price up without adding to productivity
Plus there are Massey-Ferguson financing plans Service Shield extended warranty and MF Club discounts that drive costs even lower You can t find a better value anywhere

☐ He finally found a tractor his wife will drive.
We're not surprised After all, hydrostatic power steering is standard Most models feature easy shifting synchromesh transmissions with 12 speeds And the optional tight-turning 4-wheel drive makes almost any field seem level and dry

☐ He was able to do more of the servicing himself.
All M-F 300 Series tractors were designed to require less maintenance Plus all filters pumps and service points are easy to get to
Of course if he ever does need parts or dealer servicing there are none better trained and supported than M-F dealers

☐ His old straw hat tickles.

Renaissance Nutrition Moves Into Pennsylvania

HANCOCK, MD. — Effective Monday, August 8, 1988, Renaissance Nutrition, Inc. has begun marketing their products within the state of Pennsylvania.

Renaissance was founded in December of 1985 by a group of individuals who were dedicated to providing high-quality premixes and base mixes at reasonable prices to the Northeast. Since that time they have been successfully marketing their products in New York, Ohio, Maryland, and Virginia. Due to a "covenant not to compete", honored by Craig Brown, the president of Renaissance, the company has not previously marketed product in Pennsylvania.

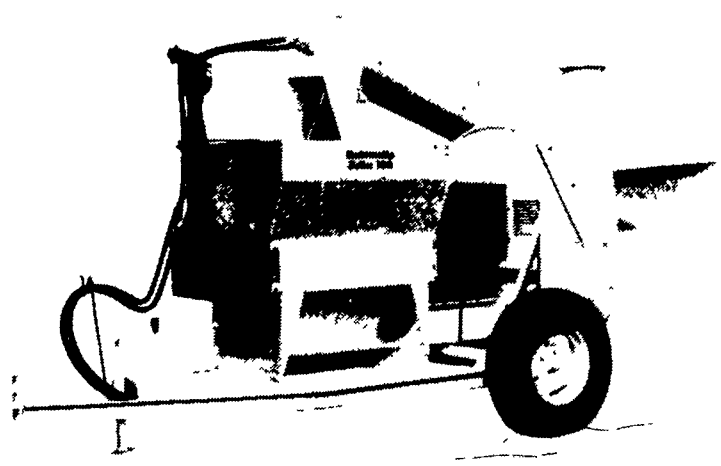
The name, Renaissance, was selected for the company, because it means "New Beginning". That new beginning has rapidly developed into Renaissance being the fastest growing Premix firm in the Northeast.

Renaissance specializes in nutrition, not the peddling of any specific product. Their sales representatives are taught to balance feed programs utilizing maximum use of home grown feeds at a minimum cost to the producer. Programs customized to each farm are developed with a "state of the art" computer program written specifically for Renaissance.

Renaissance plans a major marketing effort in Pennsylvania this fall. Their small company, personalized service and competitive prices, they believe, will appeal to the Pennsylvania dairy, beef, and swine producers looking to maximize their profits in these tight economic times.

Automatic ATG-54B Has New Features

PENDER, Ne. — The Automatic ATG-54B Roller Mill delivers processed feed to the top of the tallest silo, according to Ryder Supply Company. The mill handles 1,200 to 1,800 bu./hr. shelled corn or corn and cob mix. The big, 54-inch blower operates direct from the roll drive at 540 RPM. The ATG-54B features big capacity intake hopper with reinforced conrers, Automatic's unique one-fast-roll design and heavy-duty shafts and PTO drive. Convenient sample doors allow inspection of output between rolls and discharge blower. Matched with Automatic's Cob Catcher Sieve, the ATG-54B produces a crumbled corn and cob mix, gets more yield from the field. The ATG Mill is also available in 2400 and 3600 sizes with 40" 1000 RPM blower.



This roller mill handles 1,200 to 1,800 bushels per hour shelled corn or corn and cob mix. Its 54-inch blower operates direct from the roll drive at 540 RPM.

Gel Helps Repair Machinery Quickly

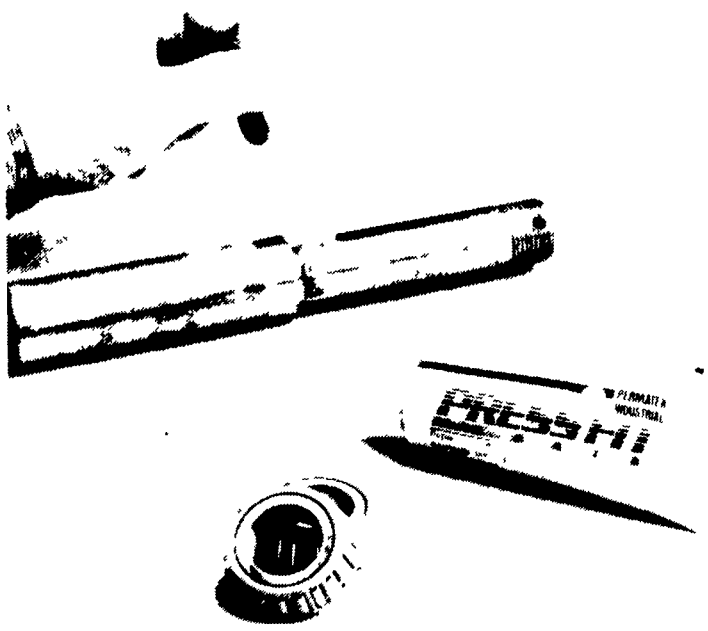
AVON, CT — Press Fit Repair™ works like a bonding metallizer to mend worn metal cylindrical parts quickly, eliminating remachining of shafts and housings. It is the newest maintenance product from Permatex Industrial Corporation.

Press Fit Repair fills surface imperfections and looseness between parts to prevent wear, fretting, corrosion, distortion or backlash. Once parts are assembled, Press Fit Repair hardens to a strength that can double that of a press fit. A non-running, non-metallic gel, it is easy to apply to vertical surfaces and will not run out of large gaps, leak from joints or drip onto adjacent components.

Press Fit Repair protects new parts from wear and permanently repairs worn metal cylindrical parts including shafts, housings, keyways, splines, bearings, and bushings. Assembled parts can be handled in 10-30 minutes, with full cure occurring in one to two hours. Because it doesn't harden outside the joint, Press Fit Repair cleans up easily.

Press Fit Repair is available in 6 and 50 ml. tubes.

Permatex Industrial Corporation markets more than 70 gasketing, lubricating, sealing, coating, cleaning, threadlocking and other maintenance and repair chemicals designed to make plant maintenance easier. For more information about Press Fit Repair, please contact William Paris, vice president, marketing, Permatex Industrial Corporation, 30 Tower Lane, Avon, CT 06001; 203/677-7727.



Permatex Industrial's new Press Fit Repair™ works like a bonding metallizer to mend worn metal cylindrical parts quickly, eliminating remachining of shafts and housings.

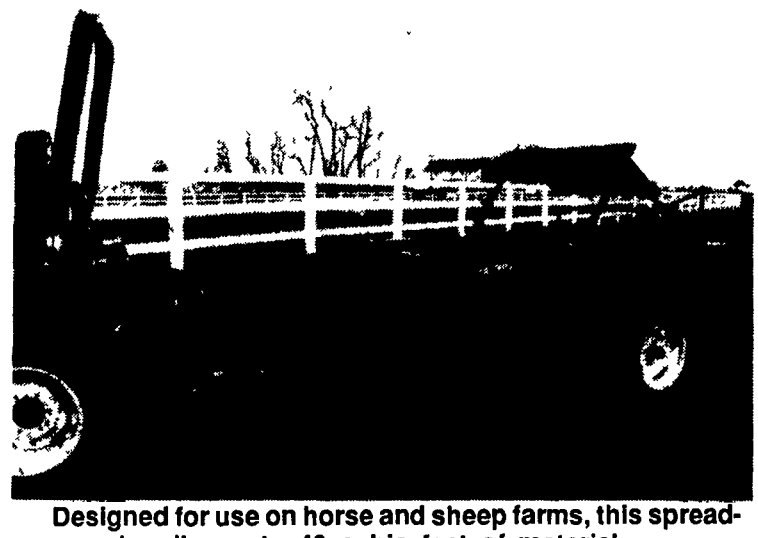
BUSINESS NEWS...



Designed for use on horse and sheep farms, this spreader can handle up to 40 cubic feet of material.

New Compact Manure Spreader From Millcreek

BIRD-IN-HAND (Lancaster) — A manure spreader small enough to be pulled by a garden tractor has been introduced by Millcreek Manufacturing Co.

Designed primarily for use on horse and sheep farms, the Millcreek Model 50 compact spreader is only five feet wide at the wheel hubs but is capable of carrying up to 40 cubic feet of material.

This spreader will go through most barn door openings and will replace the wheelbarrow in barns and stables where daily clean-out is required. It eliminates the double work of both loading and unloading manure by hand.

Once loaded, the compact spreader can be pulled to the field or unloading area by any garden tractor of 14 horsepower or more. It can be unloaded by spreading in a field, or, by using the optional dump cylinder the entire load can be dumped at one location.

A small electric motor operates the dump cylinder and is powered directly from the tractor's 12-volt battery.

An optional end gate that helps prevent spills during travel is also available.

Another unique feature on the Millcreek spreader converts it quickly and easily from a spreader to a utility cart. One bolt removes the beater blade and the unit is ready to carry soil, feed, fencing, stones, mulch or anything else that will fit on a trailer bed approximately three feet wide and eight feet long.

For the farmer or stable owner who likes to match the color of his equipment to his tractor, the Millcreek spreader comes in either red or green.

The spreader is available in a P.T.O. or ground drive model.

For more information contact your local Farm Equipment dealer or write to: Millcreek Mfg. Co., 2617 Stumptown Rd., Bird-in-Hand, PA 17505.

Auctioneer Attends National Convention

KANSAS CITY, MO. — C. Sherman Allen has returned from the 1988 convention of the National Auctioneers Association, held July 12-16, at the Hyatt Regency at Crown Center in Kansas City, Mo. More than 1,000 members and guests attended the "Auction: Today's Marketing Advantage" convention, one of the most exciting association conventions held to date.

Among other convention duties, Sherman attended informative workshops to strengthen his auction services in the real estate and agri-business areas. These workshops included auctions reflections, great ideas in the auction profession, antiques at auction, equipment auctions, advertising the auction, livestock auctions, bid calling techniques, business liquidations, real estate at auction and auction marketing in the future.

Sherman was one of six members throughout the nation to be elected to serve on the Agri-Business Auction council. These auctioneers will meet to plan programs and/or activities for other auctioneers interested in this field of auctioneering. Councils were formed in numerous areas to help auctioneers better serve both their sellers and buyers.

In addition to the workshops, there were entertaining tours to points of interest in and around the Kansas City area including Starlight Theater, Worlds and Oceans of Fun, the Agricultural Hall of Fame, Historic Weston, Truman's Home and Royals and Arrowhead Stadiums, home of the Kansas City Royals and Kansas City Chiefs.

Other convention events were the annual Awards Banquet where three auctioneers were inducted into the Auctioneers Hall of Fame, and the Grand Opening of the Auctioneers Hall of History at the Association's national headquarters in Overland Park, Kansas.

Allen returned from the NAA Convention to his home in Conneaut Lake, Pa. He conducts all type of auctions anywhere in conjunction with partner Bruce Nicolls of Nicolls & Allen Auctioneers, Meadville, Pa. They can be reached by calling, 814/333-1988.

Dairy Tips By Dr. John Clark

PURINA MILLS, INC.

Purina Mills Dairy Consultant

CAN YOU FEED UREA?

When protein costs skyrocket like they have this summer, the value of non-protein nitrogen in dairy rations becomes very attractive to cost conscious dairymen. Urea can be used profit- if the ration is mixed well in a concentrate that is properly formulated with other natural sources of proteins, energy, fiber, minerals and is fortified with micro-nutrients at the correct levels.

Many top herds have been using rations that contain urea for the past several years to take advantage of the cost savings & nutritional benefits of this feedstuff.

FIGHT HIGH FEED PRICES

Protect Your Forages With MAXI-SIL

That's right!! With the midwest drought forcing up all the ingredient prices, the best thing you can do is make sure you are getting the maximum value from home grown forages. With protein prices over $300/ton, saving a 3% loss from heat damage on your haylage can be worth over $25 per ton of haylage. MAXI-SIL can deliver this protection for less than $1 per ton. Cows will also eat more pounds of forage dry matter on MAXI-SIL treated forages which helps to hold down grain feeding rates. Ask your Purina Dealer for local testimonials on MAXI-SIL. AND get MAXI-mum SIL-age protection.

CHECK WITH YOUR PURINA DEALER FOR THEIR BOOKING SPECIAL ON MAXI-SIL.

Lancaster Farming

Dairy of Distinction Supplement to Lancaster Farming, Saturday, August 6, 1988

This Dairy of Distinction with attractive fields, buildings and lawn represents the 94 dairy farms across Pennsylvania that have qualified for the recognition this year. The program rewards farm families who have farmsteads that look nice and provides encouragment for others to beautify their farms. In so doing, it gives consumers a favorable impression of the source of dairy products as they drive past the farm. Here the Kopp family at Stoney Lawn Farm, Dauphin County, get together to receive their Dairy of Distinction sign from Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Boyd Wolff. (At right) Wolff presents the farm sign to Howard and Mary Kopp. (In center) Jay and Ann Kopp with children Jayanna, age 14, and Adam, age 9, hold Jayanna's 4-H project-- two-year-old Stoney Lawn Columbia Raindrop. Raindrop represents the middle of three generations of heifers that started when Jayanna joined the 4-H dairy club five years ago. Raindrop is just finishing her first record of over 18,000 pounds of milk and is quite stylish. (At left) Ronald and Barbara Kopp and son Brandon, age 6, and Rachelle, age 2. Another son, Galen, works in the pesticide division of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Galen and his wife, Lilli Ann, have three children, Ryan, age 14, Sean, age 11, and Mitchell, age 9.

State Dairy Of Distinction Winners Named

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LITITZ — Another successful year for the Dairy of Distinction program has been completed with 311 applications across the state of Pennsylvania. Judges in all ten districts evaluated each applicant's farm from the roadside. In addition, dairy sanitarians for each farm were asked to indicate that the quality of milk from each farm was acceptable.

When the judging was completed, 94 new Dairy of Distinction awards were given. These awards were presented as an incentive to keep farms beautiful and to help consumers have a favorable impression of the source of their dairy products. In addition, the awards provide incentive for farmers to tidy up their homesteads to meet the Dairy of Distinction standards.

Each Dairy of Distinction receives a farm sign, and a certificate from the Pennsylvania state program. Lancaster Farming provides an 11x14 color farm portrait print to each farm or district that provides a suitable negative.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION

Robert P. Casey, Pennsylvania's Governor, proclaimed August 14-20 as Dairy of Distinction Week. And in his proclamation he said the hard work of dairy farmers "placed our Commonwealth in the top five dairy states in the nation."

In 1987 Pennsylvania's commercial dairy farms produced a record 10.18 billion pounds of milk, and contributed 1.3 billion dollars to our state's economy. Dairy farming has been one of the key factors in agriculture's emergence as Pennsylvania's number one industry.

"In addition to their efficiency and productivity, however, Pennsylvania's dairy farmers also take great pride in the appearance of their farms," Casey said. "I urge all citizens to join in saluting our dairymen, who richly deserve the recognition and encouragement afforded by the Dairy of Distinction program."

AG PROGRESS EVENT

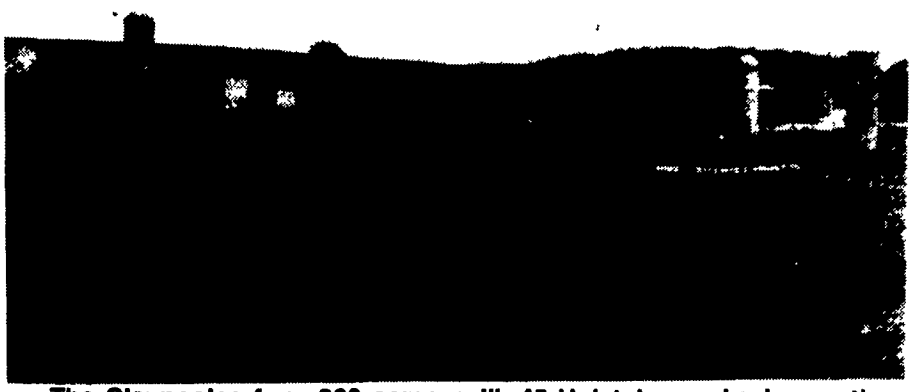
A special place for all state Dairy of Distinction farm families to meet has been planned during Ag Progress Days at Rock Springs. The time for this event is August 17 at 2 p.m. in the Special Events Building.

As in the past, ten district committees comprised of volunteer members ran the program in the local areas. This year the district chairmen are as follows: District 11, George Wilcox; District 12, Wally Jackson; District 13, Jack Erway; District 14, David Myers; District 15, Sam McClay-Charles Rohrbaugh; District 16, Berneice Gable; District 17, Kevin Barrett; District 18, Alan Roszel; District 19, Naomi Spahr; District 20, Russ Rooks.

Here's Lancaster Farming's tribute to this year's Dairy of Distinction winners in Pennsylvania

Armstrong County

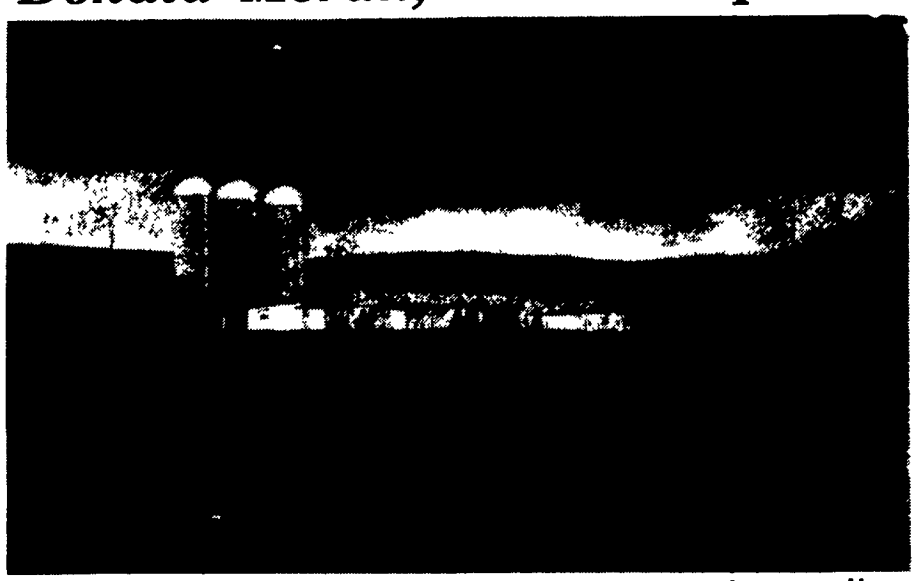
Oren J. Claypoole, Worthington



The Claypooles farm 260 acres, milk 45 Holsteins and raise on the average 65 head of crossbred beef cattle each year. The farm is known as Lyn-Haven Farms, also its prefix. The Rolling Herd Average is over 19,000 lbs. Oren and Sara's son, DeeJay, work full time on the farm and the third generation is also on the farm, Alex, age 20. This beautifully landscaped farm with its freshly painted white board fences lies at the foothills of the Alleghanies.

Bedford County

Donald Moran, New Enterprise



The South Penn Farms are owned by Donald P. Moran and managed by Bernard Snider.

Berks County

Donald E. Landis, Myerstown

The Spring-Breeze Farm of Donald Landis, Myerstown, Berks County, has 122 acres. In addition they rent 200 more. Donald's father purchased the farm in 1949. The Landis', including son Tom and a full-time herdsman, farm corn and alfalfa, and milk 135 Holsteins in a carousel milking parlor.

Berks County

John C. & William J. Mertz, Kutztown

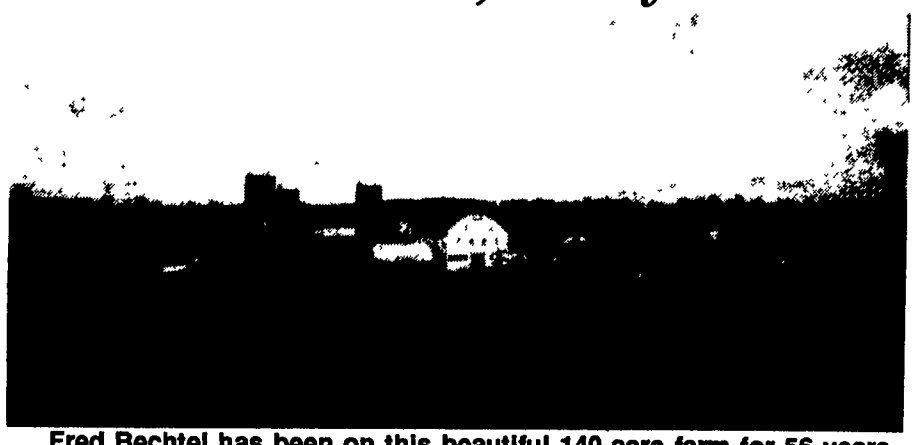
It was 1936 when John P. Mertz, John C. and William's father purchased this 140-acre farm. Acreage farmed now totals 275, and on 40 head of Holsteins the Mertz Brothers carry a 22,000-pound RHA and 795 lbs. of butterfat.

S-Pine Lawn Farm, Fleetwood

S-Pine Lawn Farm, has been in the Schuler family since 1890 when Grandfather George made the purchase. The Schuler brothers took over the partnership in 1984, but father and mother, George and Olive are still very much involved with the daily farming activities. They recently expanded their Holstein herd to 75 carry a herd average of 20,000 lbs.

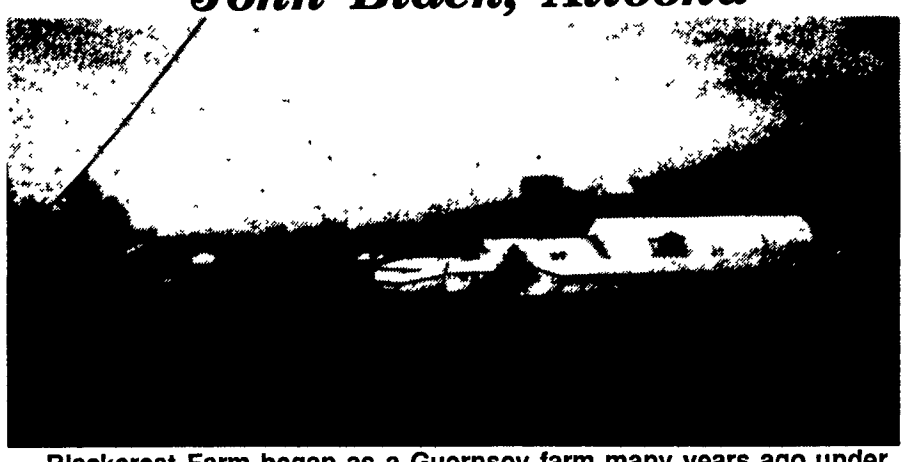
Blair County

Fred Bechtel, Curryville



Fred Bechtel has been on this beautiful 140-acre farm for 56 years when his father Glen bought it. Fred and son, Gary, work the farm on a partnership. Dale, the youngest son works fulltime on the farm. Mary spends her time doing what she loves best, babysitting her four grandchildren. The 85-head of Holsteins carries a 19,500-pound herd average.

John Black, Altoona



Blackcrest Farm began as a Guernsey farm many years ago under Samuel Black. By the time his sons, John and Robert took over the farm in 10 years, the herd was all registered Red and White and Black and White Holsteins. Today the prefix Blackcrest is on 15 A.I. bulls. Red and White makeup one-third of the herd, while another third are carriers. The cattle merchandising business has been snowballing for this farm in the past few years. They have sold 50 head each year for the past three years.

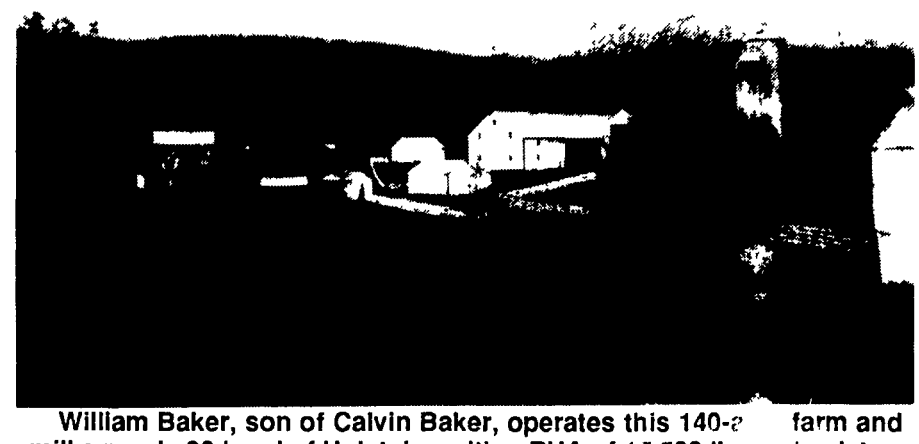
The Lar-Ann Farm became home to the Kulps 15 years ago when they moved from Montgomery County. Their herd of 160 mostly registered Holsteins carries a 18,300-pound RHA with 690 in butterfat.

William R. Baker, Williamsburg



William Baker, son of Calvin Baker, operates this 140-a farm and milks nearly 90 head of Holsteins with a RHA of 17,500 lbs. This picturesque farm, which lies along Clover Creek, has been in the Baker family for 45 years. Calvin gets the credit for all the painting and mowing.

Bradford County

Ron & Judi Butts, Towanda

Fred and Alice Butts own the Ronalfred Farm and Ron and Judi do the farming. Fred bought the farm in 1923, but the history on this goes back to the much further and to France. The farm, located in French Asylium, was built by the French, the Lapports, as a home and refuge for Marie Antoinette, according to Judi. The large, white-pillared house dates back to 1853. The Butts milk 45 Holsteins. Ron and Judi credit Fred and Alice with making their farm a Dairy of Distinction.

Master Mix
ProTek™
The technology in protein efficiency.

When you can reduce protein in the milking ration by 15 to 20 percent while maintaining milk production, that's efficiency! And that's exactly what Master Mix ProTek feeding is all about.

This technology of protein treatment can greatly improve protein utilization by dairy cows. And do it consistently. That's because Master Mix ProTek is a unique new process rather than just another reformulation of protein sources. It's an exclusive process developed by Central Soya Research

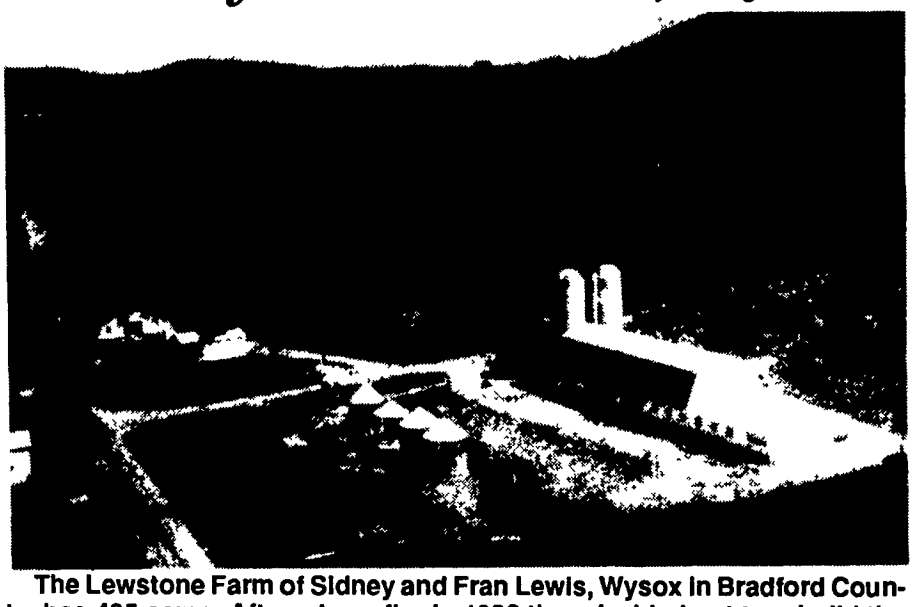
Gary & Darla Kelly, Granville Summit

The Ponder-Hill Farm, Grantville Summit, Bradford County, is farmed by Gary and Darla Kelly, along with Gary's father Joe and sons Kurt, age 12, and Tim, age 9. A real family partnership, the Kellys own 212 acres and rent another 170 acres. They milk about 63 registerd Holsteins and have 69 heifers and calves. The farm has been in the Kelly family since 1951.

Sidney & Fran Lewis, Wysox



The Lewstone Farm of Sidney and Fran Lewis, Wysox in Bradford County, has 435 acres. After a barn fire in 1986 they decided not to rebuild the calf-raising facilities. So now they buy six to eight yearlings each year to breed for their replacements. Their 50 milk cows average between 17,500 and 18,000 pounds of milk, though they are not on official test. Sidney's father bought the farm in 1928.

Dale & Jane Mattocks, Columbia Cross Roads

The Mattockstead Farm, Columbia Crossroad in Bradford County, has been in the family over 50 years. Dale and Jane Mattock, along with their youngest son Lyle, farm 410 acres, and milk 70 Holsteins that produce over 18,000 pounds of milk. The farm is self-sufficient by raising most of the feed for the dairy herd.

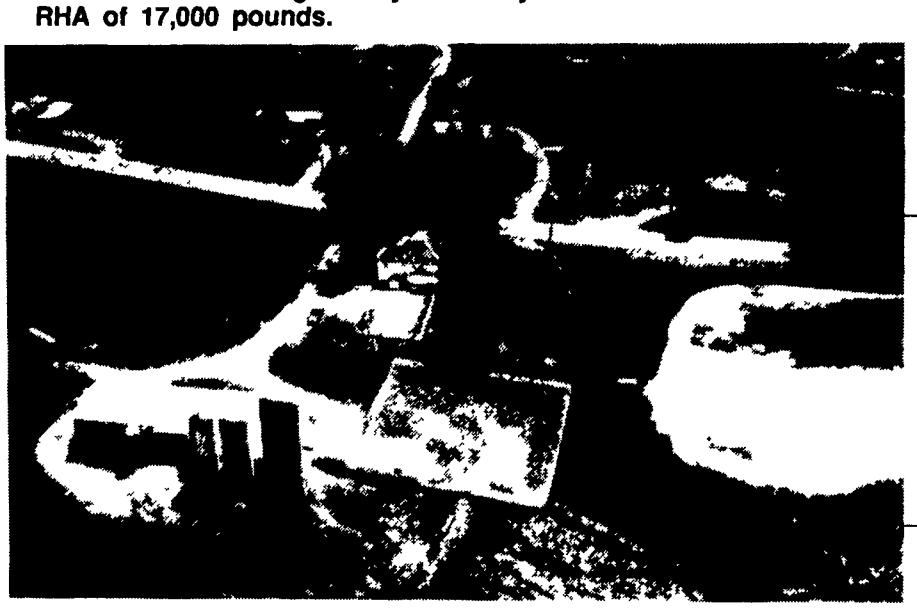
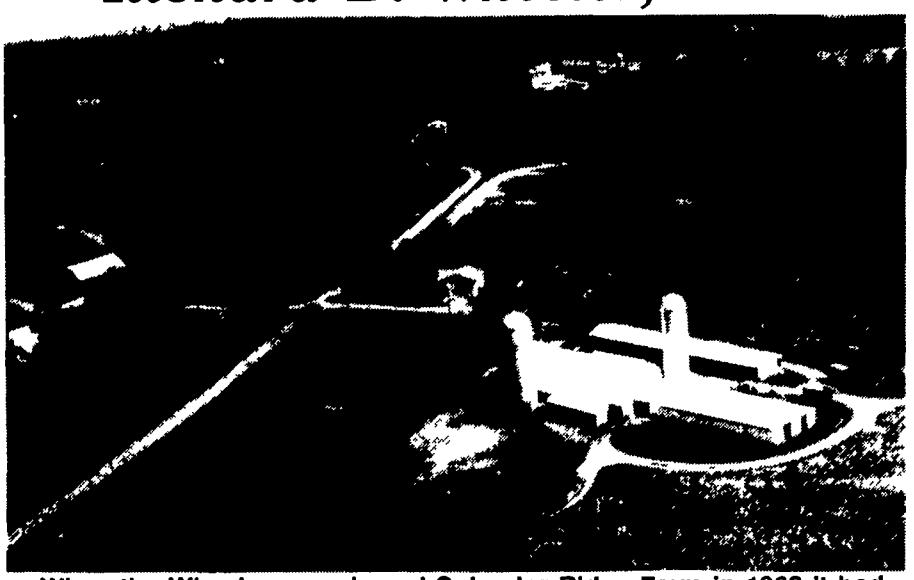
Merle & Beverly Watson, Columbia Cross Roads

Merle and Beverly Watson own the 455-acre Watson Farm in a partnership with their son, Gavin. The Watsons purchased it 20 years ago, but have been farming for 33 years. They milk 70 Holsteins and have a RHA of 17,000 pounds.



Richard D. Wheeler, Gillett



When the Wheelers purchased Splendor Ridge Farm in 1962 it had been abandoned for nearly 70 years. They've added a free stall barn, three silos, equipment shed and a large addition on the original home. Although their children have left the house, they can't seem to leave the farm. Wilber works full time at the farm and although Weslie and Wendy live and work off the farm they return regularly to help out. (Dad says they get a little homesick). Lois loves flowers and her work blossoms everywhere. They farm 200 acres and milk 60 registered Holsteins with a RHA of 20,883 and 767 lbs. of butterfat. Their herd contains six EX; 31 VG; and 14 G-plus giving them a BAA of 107.7. Their highest ever. Lois and Richard celebrated their 26th anniversary on the farm July 15.

Thad & Sheila Woodward, Canton

Thad and Sheila Woodward farm Hermit Hill Farm at Canton in Bradford County. They own 140 acres and rent another 90 acres to grow corn and hay for the dairy herd. They have a total of 100 head of dairy animals. Their 50 milking cows produce between 18,000 and 19,000 pounds of milk. The farm was purchased eight years ago.

George & Stephen Hartzell, Slippery Rock

The Hartzell Farm is the 200 acres purchased by the great-grandfather George W. Hartzell almost 100 years ago. Today it is operated by brothers George and Stephen, but their parents, Duane and Leah are still very much a part of the day-to-day farming operation and most of the credit for the Dairy Of Distinction honor goes to them, according to their children. The Hartzells milk 75 Holsteins with a herd average of more than 19,000 lbs.

Centre County

Dave J. Brown, Boalsburg

Windmill Farm, Boalsburg, Centre County, is operated by brothers Darren and Dustin Brown. The farm owned by their father, Dave, has 80 acres, and they rent other ground from neighbors. Their 60 cows produce about 55 pounds of milk per day. The Browns recently left a farming partnership to begin their own operation on the farm purchased four years ago.

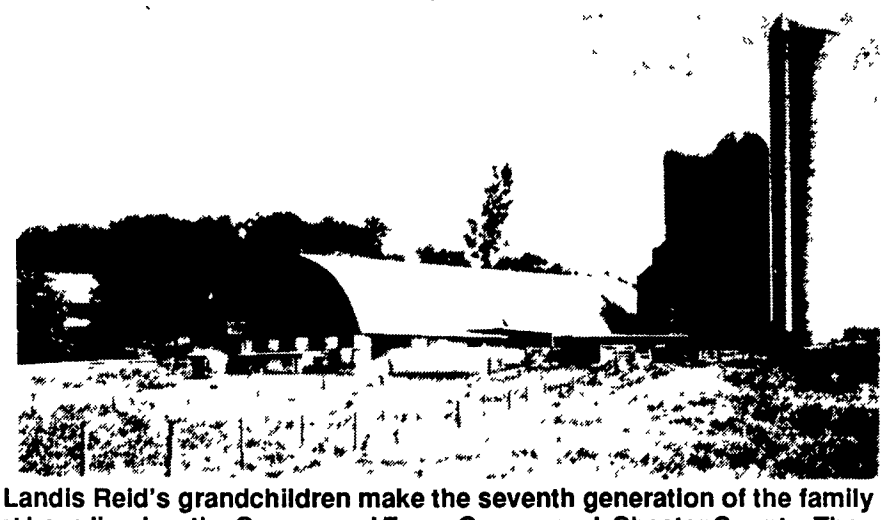
Ben Beiler, Cochranville

Ben Beiler, owner and Tim Barlow, farm operator pay attention to details and it shows at Pinta Lane Farm. They take pride in the farm's appearance and in their 100 head of registered Holsteins with the Pinta Lane prefix. The herd average is approximately 20,000 lbs. with 750 lbs. of butterfat.

Landis S. Reid, Parkesburg



Landis Reid's grandchildren make the seventh generation of the family that have lived on the Greenwood Farm, Greenwood, Chester County. They farm 200 acres that came into the family in 1818, and the present buildings were erected in 1828 when the land was divided into two farms. They milk 65 Holsteins that average 20,000-21,000 pounds of milk and 743 pounds of butterfat. They feed with a TMR in a stanchion barn and have a liquid manure system.

Clyde, Thomas & William Williams, Oxford

Travelers along route 10, just north of Oxford don't need a sign to tell them the Williams' farm is distinctive. People have been admiring and complimenting the beautifully kept Maple Grove Farm for years. Keeping it beautiful and productive is a fulltime job involving the entire family. The 220-acre farm is owned and operated by Clyde his brother Bill and son Thomas. Clyde's wife, Margaret, helps with all the work, especially the milking. Their daughter Christina works full-time at a local bank, but makes time to help out making straw and hay. She also does the mowing. Maple Grove Farm milks 60 Holsteins and carries an average of more than 16,000 lbs.

DAIRY OF DISTINCTION...

Dan "Dairy of Distinction! That's a neat sign you have there."

Dale "Yes, we dairy farmers have to do what we can to get people to drink more milk."

Dan "Is that sign supposed to help?"

Dale "Well, it's part of the Dairy Farm Beautification Program. The goal is to have every dairy farm try to have a good appearance."

Dan "You mean like planting roses at the mailbox and pansies at the downspout?"

Dale "Well, that all helps. The idea is that when people drive down the highway and see a pretty dairy farm, it will encourage them to have a good, cold glass of milk with their next meal."

Dan "I guess that's better than seeing a tumbled down place with barn doors falling off, broken window panes and cows standing knee deep in a mudhole."

Dale "I would think so! If every dairy farmer tries to make his farmstead and cows look clean and attractive, he is helping to encourage everybody to drink more milk!"

In addition to the dairy, the Fairmans have also established a sweet corn business to accommodate the close market in town.

Crawford County

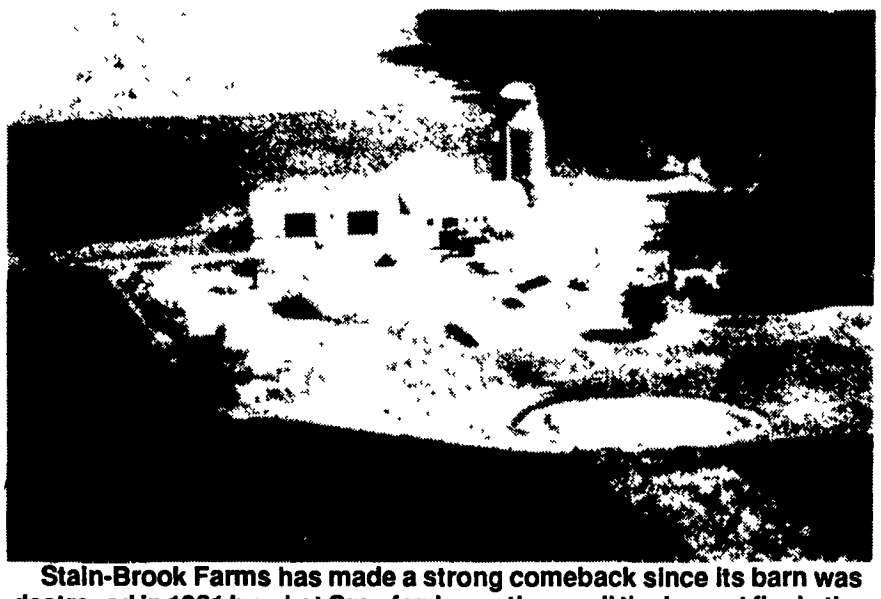
Stain-Brook Farms, Meadville



Stain-Brook Farms has made a strong comeback since its barn was destroyed in 1981 by what Crawford countians call the largest fire in the area. Luckily Wayne and Jessie Stainbrook and their son Bruce didn't loose their animals in the fire. They kept the calves and open heifers and sold the rest. The farm now has 54 milking Holsteins with a RHA of 22,014 pounds and 771 pounds butterfat. The partnership attributes most of their success to hard work and the alfalfa grown on some of the farm's 450 acres.

Jon B. Reese, Guys Mills

The 600-acre farm owned by Jon and Margaret Reese is a Century Farm that has been in the family since 1857. The Reeses and two of their children, Jonele and David, milk 80 head of Holstein and a few Brown Swiss and grow soybeans, alfalfa, corn, oats, and wheat.

Morrell Farms, Cochranton

Morrell Farms is operated by a partnership formed by three brothers: William, Robert, and Charles Morrell. The 500-acre farm milks 100 registered Holsteins, which Robert inseminates artificially. Their February 1988 BAA Classification was 108.7, and they had 23 Excellent, 55 Very Good, and 23 Good Plus cows. In addition they were named premier breeder at the 1987 and '88 Pennsylvania State Spring Show.

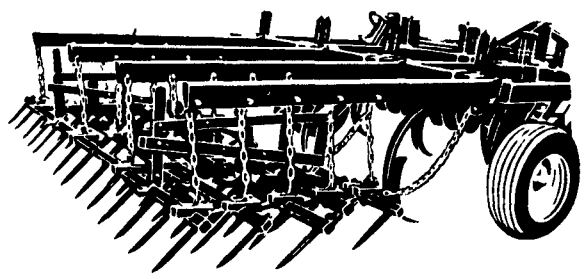
HELP YOUR SOIL BUILDER DO AN EVEN BETTER JOB!



with a BRILLION SPIKE DRAG KIT

The Brillion Spike Drag is especially designed for the Brillion Soil Builder when used in primary tillage. It levels ridges, helps break up cloddy soil and keeps the soil from drying out too rapidly. The smoother surface is also desirable if chemical incorporation is to be done after the coulter-chisel operation.

A special feature of the Brillion Spike Drag is the angle adjustment of the spikes from 20° to 55° in five increments. A sturdy handle is used to move the mechanism. The adjustment feature provides a choice of spike angles to meet varying conditions — from very aggressive to near horizontal (to avoid plugging in heavy residue). Brillion Spike Drag Harrows are available to fit 5, 7, 9, 11 and 13 shank Soil Builders.

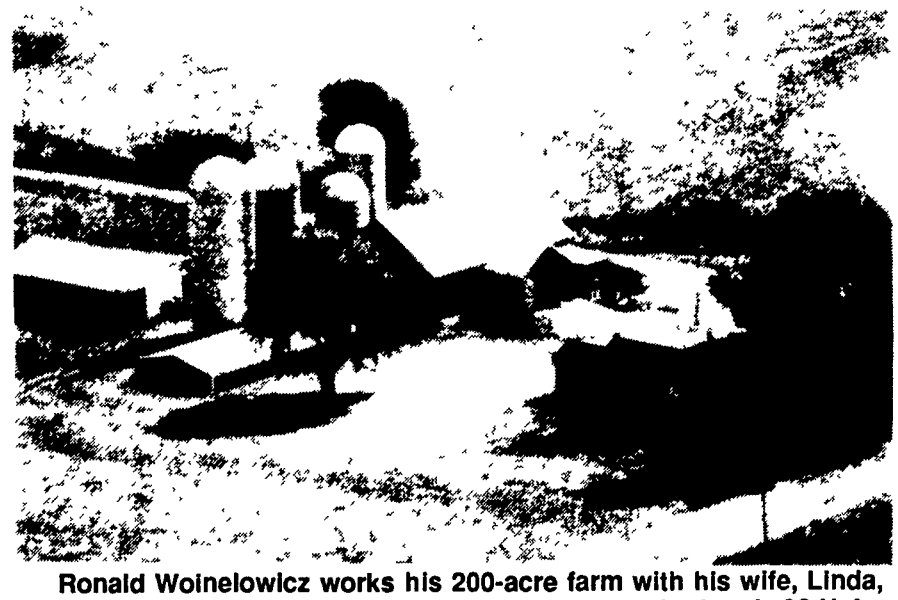
They milk about 100 cows in their modern barn and these cows average over 19,000 pounds of milk. The Kopps bought the farm in 1946.

Erie County

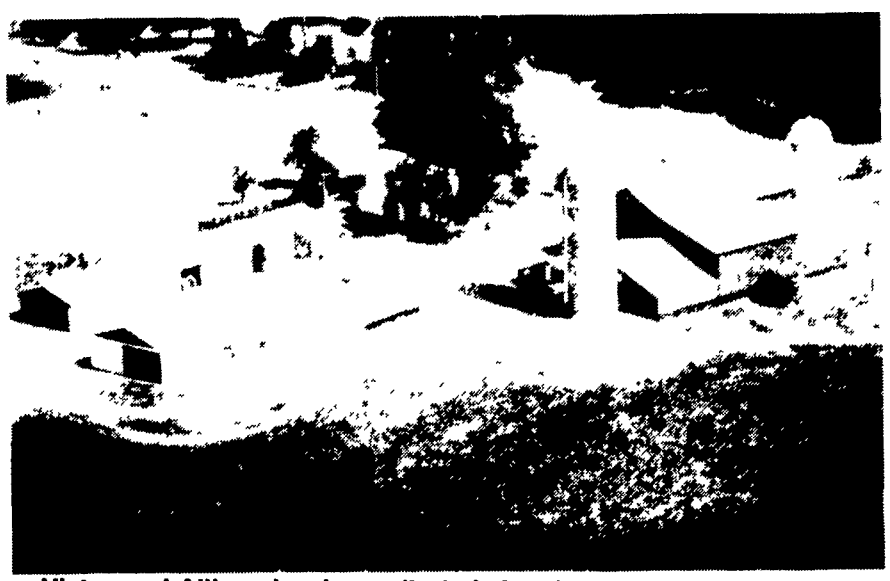
Ronald Woinelowicz, Union City



Ronald Woinelowicz works his 200-acre farm with his wife, Linda, and his son Mark. Linda helps with the milking on the farm's 98 Holsteins. The Woinelowiczes grow corn and oats.

Erie County

Victor Lewis, McKean



Victor and Alliene Lewis credit their farm's selection as a Dairy of Distinction to their daughter Debbie, who is the only one of their four children that works with Victor. Victor purchased the farm in 1952 and has expanded twice. Tidy Knoll Farm currently consists of 237 acres and 75 milking Holsteins with a RHA of 19,460 pounds. The Lewises raise corn, oats, alfalfa, and clover.

Randell Meabon, Wattsburg

Green Meadow Farms has been in Ronald P. Meabon's family since his grandfather, Arthur, purchased it 44 years ago. Arthur cleared it and added parcels as the farming operation grew until it became the 325-acre property it is now. Meabon and his wife, Paula, also lease the farm next door to grow their corn, oats and alfalfa and to keep their 100 milking Holsteins. The Meabons have two children: Bradley, 6, and Nicole, 8.

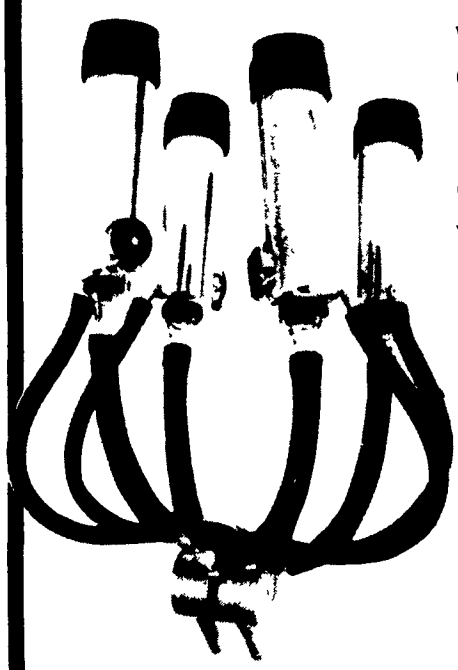
THE WESTFALIA BIO-MILKER

WESTFALIA SYSTEMAT

It's Something Else!



Would Fast Milking, Good Clean Milk Out, Minimal Liner Slip And Reduced Udder Stress Benefit Your Cow's Performance?

WHO IS THE PATENTED BIO-MILKER FOR?

Any Dairyman Concerned With Both Udder Health And Milking Efficiency.

The Bio-Milker features a synchronized automatic air-inlet valve just under the teat tip. Air enters only during the release phase. A perfectly timed air burst quickly moves the milk away from the teat. This reduces the risk of infection by limiting teat impacts. Also, vacuum is utilized to provide a biologically desired pressure release of teat tissue. Westfalia's Bio-Milker is the ultimate in milking quality.

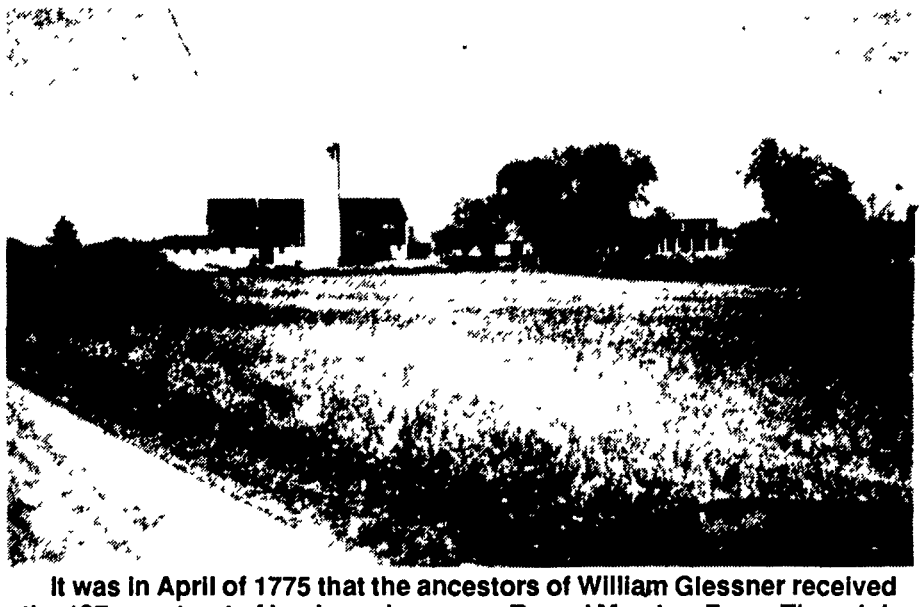
Top quality forages support Mountainview's herd average of 21,920 lbs. and 742 lbs. of butterfat. A home-bred two-year-old Simon daughter is predicted to hit 35,000 lbs. of milk in her third year. They also raise 80 acres of potatoes for Sniders of Berlin.

Glenn, David & Janet Scott, Friedens

Janet thought Stonylake Farm didn't stand a chance, but worked and painted until she had the farm in top shape. "I wanted it so badly I could taste it," said Janet. "I kissed that sign when we got it." That sign made 38 years on the farm worth it for Janet. The Scotts milk 62 Holsteins with a herd average of 20,900 lbs. with 813 lbs. of butterfat on this Century farm.

William Glessner, Berlin



It was in April of 1775 that the ancestors of William Glessner received the 187-acre tract of land now known as Round Meadow Farm. The original patent, according to several stories, was offered as payment to an ancestor for serving in the Revolutionary War. William and his wife, Shirley, milk 40 Holsteins. Their son Leroy, named for William's grandfather, helps out fulltime and will one day carry on the Glessner tradition.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

Governor's Office

PROCLAMATION

PENNSYLVANIA DAIRY OF DISTINCTION WEEK
August 14 - 20, 1988

The long hours and hard work of Pennsylvania's dairy farmers have placed our Commonwealth among the top five dairy states in the nation.

In 1987, Pennsylvania's commercial dairy farms produced a record 10.18 billion pounds of milk and contributed $1.3 billion to our state's economy. Dairy farming has been one of the key factors in agriculture's emergence as Pennsylvania's number one industry.

In addition to their efficiency and productivity, however, Pennsylvania's dairy farmers also take great pride in the appearance of their farms.

The Dairy of Distinction program was introduced in Pennsylvania last year as part of a program to recognize the most beautiful dairy farms in the northeastern United States. Judges surveyed some 400 entries throughout the state and selected the most attractive farms from each of 10 districts. In all, 96 Pennsylvania dairy farms received the honor of "Dairy of Distinction" for 1987.

Judging is now underway to determine which of Pennsylvania's 14,000 commercial dairy farms will be so honored this year. Judges in Pennsylvania's 10 districts are devoting long hours to the task of rating each farm for neatness, maintenance and roadside appearance.

Therefore, I, Robert P. Casey, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby proclaim August 14 - 20, 1988, as PENNSYLVANIA DAIRY OF DISTINCTION WEEK. I urge all citizens to join me in saluting our dairymen who richly deserve the recognition and encouragement afforded by the Dairy of Distinction program.

GIVEN under my hand and the Seal of the Governor, at the City of Harrisburg, this twenty-second day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eighty-eight, and of the Commonwealth the two hundred and thirteenth.

Robert P. Casey
Governor
